DEMAND FACTS IN AUTO TRAGEDY

3 PURE FOOD BILLS NOW LAW

Three important food bills have just become laws. Governor Foss has signed two and allowed the third to become a law without his signature. The success of these bills gave the AMERICAN'S pure food campaign a tremendous impetus.

The Governor allowed the "rotten egg bill" to become law and signed the "sausage bill" and the "brandy drop bill." The rotten egg bill was introduced by Representative John F. McCarthy. The other two were introduced by Harry P. Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S pure food expert.

The rotten egg bill will prevent, in large measure, the sale of rotten eggs for food purposes. This will be its only effect, and it will harm no honest or legitimate business. Yet Alton E. Briggs, executive secretary of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, and Alfred P. Lee, president of the Exchange, and head of the "Cloverdale" chain of stores, opposed the bill.

These two men spent an hour yesterday arguing with Governor Foss in an attempt to induce him to veto the bill. It was suggested that Mr. Cassidy and these men should meet the Governor, and lay both sides of the question before him. Briggs and Lee refused. The Governor refused to veto the bill, notwithstanding the protests.

Cassidy's Comment.

Harry P. Cassidy, commenting upon Briggs' and Lee's opposition to the bill, said:

"Commission men sell their rots and spots at a price of $1 to $3 a crate, when those eggs are to be broken and used for food. The eggs bring only 30 cents a crate for other purposes. That is why some commission men do not want the trade in rotten eggs for food purposes abolished. Briggs and Lee, I suppose, represent these commission men."

The sausage bill prevents the use of more than two per cent. cereal, or of more than three per cent. water in sausage. It also forbids the use of artificial color. The cereal in sausage is put there to absorb water, and so increase the weight and bulk of the sausage. Sausage containing five per cent. cereal, will hold as high as twenty-five per cent. water. The purchaser who buys this sausage is cheated by just so much. The bill will end this cheat.

The brandy drop bill prohibits the sale of candy containing a liquid containing more than one per cent. alcohol.

Advance Over Previous Law.

The rotten egg bill was introduced by Representative John F. McCarthy. It is an advance over the previous law in three ways.

1—It prevents the sale of spot eggs for food. Spot eggs are partially decomposed, yet under the previous law some of them were sold for food, and legally.

2—It gives the State food inspectors an easier way of securing evidence of the sale of rotten eggs. In the past, it has been extremely difficult for them to make out a case.

3—It provides imprisonment for selling rotten eggs for food, instead of a paltry fine, as under the old law.

The passage of this bill was accelerated by Cassidy's exposure in the AMERICAN of the sale of rotten eggs for food purposes in Boston.

Representative McCarthy, father of the bill, led the fight for it in the House, and was seconded by practically every member of the House. There was no opposition to the bill, either in the House or in the Senate.

Another step in the AMERICAN'S fight to protect the public health was won today when the legislative Committee on Public Health reported favorably on the bill introduced by Harry P. Cassidy providing for the appointment of a recess committee to codify and revise the food laws of the State. The committee also reported favorably the bill providing for a reorganization of the State Board of Health and the appointment of a paid board consisting of five members.

One Mystery Solved; Here Is Another

We don't wonder you had some curiosity as to why this picture has been printed on the first page of the AMERICAN for several days.

This is the answer:

The AMERICAN has purchased a serial story—the most interesting Boston has had in years.

The story will start in Monday's AMERICAN.

This picture typifies the story.

Based on this picture, what in your judgment is the title, or ought to be, of this story?

The title is being held in a sealed envelope by Charles E. Valentine, assistant treasurer of the Commonwealth Trust Company.

Five dollars in gold will be paid to each of the five best literary judgments received.

The letters will be received up to noon Saturday and the awards will be announced in the Sunday AMERICAN.

An announcement of the greatest interest will also be printed on Sunday.

Address Mystery Editor, BOSTON AMERICAN.

The five best letters already received describing the mystery picture will be found on page 9.

TO SIGN LAND BILL AT ONCE

SACRAMENTO, Cal., May 15.—Governor Hiram Johnson today said he would sign the anti-alien land bill within seventy-two hours.

He intimated that he might sign it today.

The bill, which was passed by both houses of the Legislature, will become effective, August 10 unless it is suspended by a referendum petition.

The effect of the measure will be to prevent Japanese from owning any real estate in California, and the Governor's determination to sign it is a mutual defiance of President Wilson and Secretary of State Bryan, who had asked the executive to veto the measure.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The formal reply of the United States to the Japanese protest against the Webb alien land law in California probably will be dispatched to Tokio late tomorrow.

It was stated at the White House today that John Basset Moore, counselor of the State Department, has completed the draft of the reply. It will be submitted to the Cabinet tomorrow morning, following a conference between Secretary Bryan and President Wilson. Should the Cabinet approve the Moore draft of the reply, it will be wired at once to Tokio, there to be presented to the Japanese government by the American charge d'affaires.

While the details of the reply have not been made public it was learned that the document assures Japan that the United States has done everything in its power to prevent the enactment of the Webb law, but because this law conflicts with any existing treaty, but because it does not meet with the approval of a friendly foreign power.

Japan also will be informed that the administration intends to do everything possible to delay the enforcement of the law until its constitutionality shall be determined in the courts.

Tokio Expects New Treaty.

TOKIO, May 15.—An optimistic belief prevails at the Japanese Foreign Office that the controversy between this country and the United States over the California alien land bill will soon be settled to the satisfaction of both sides. An attache of the Foreign Office today said:

"We expect to reach a friendly and permanent solution. The negotiations with the United States are going ahead satisfactorily."

The public clamor over the bill is dying out.

Hear Arizona Protests.

PHOENIX, Ariz., May 15.—Governor Hunt today granted the Japanese Society of Arizona permission to come here and place protests against the alien bill. A committee of six members of the society replied that they would appear. Because the Governor signs the bill, a case will be taken into the United States courts to test the constitutionality of the act.

TWO BURNED BY AN EXPLOSION OF NAPHTHA AT LYNN

Two men were burned and scores of woman rushed to the street today when a partly filled ten-gallon can of naphtha exploded in the Watson Shoe Company building, Broad street, Lynn. The noise and flames startled 150 women working in the nearby stitching room, most of whom fled to the street.

The men who were burned were Angelico Givanio, an employe, and Frank M. Fitzpatrick, a foreman in the factory. Both were taken to the Lynn City Hospital for treatment. Neither was seriously hurt. The fire was extinguished by an automatic sprinkler.

BOSTON THIRD IN PARCEL POST LIST

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Reports received at the Postoffice Department indicate that the 75,500,000 parcel post packages were sent through the mails during April, approximately 54 per cent. more than were handled in January, the first month of the system's operation. Chicago, with 6,397,692 parcels, led all other cities in the amount of parcel post business done in April, while New York city, with 6,252,378 parcels, was second. Boston third, Philadelphia fourth, Cleveland fifth and St. Louis sixth.

Girl, "Despondent in Love," Ends Life With Chloroform

WORCESTER, May 15.—After underlining a passage in Sir Gilbert Parker's famous novel, "The Right of War," Miss Marion Plante, an attractive young woman of twenty-four, took her life early today with chloroform. Her sister declared that she had been "disappointed in love." The passage the young woman had underlined in the novel was this:

"After five years, you have forgotten me."

Miss Plante was found in bed by her sister, Mrs. Carrie Sampson, with whom she lived near the Millbury line, on Grafton street. Over her face was a piece of her clothing saturated with chloroform. Dr. Richard J. Shannahan, the ambulance surgeon, said Miss Plante had been dead several hours.

According to the sister, the young woman had sat up late reading the Parker novel. Mrs. Sampson refused to discuss her sister's "love affair."

T. N. Perkins & Co., Stock Exchange House, Suspends

The stock exchange house of Thomas H. Perkins & Co. of No. 60 Congress street, announced its failure today. The failure is considered unimportant and had no influence on the market.

The firm dealt extensively in copper stocks. The firm members are Neil A. Dirver and D. A. O'Neil. Mr. Dirver being the board member. He was admitted to the exchange November 14, 1906.

It is understood that the liabilities of the firm were about $60,000. The majority of the firm's loans were liquidated months ago when the exception of $27,000 owning the Wyandot Copper Company. This loan according to Treasurer Adams of the Wyandot Company is secured by stock exchange collateral.

HANLEY WILL STOP BETTING AT BALL PARK

Captain John J. Hanley of Roxbury Crossing police station, speaking today about Dr. Barnett Bruce, a visionary dentist, being barred from the South End baseball grounds at the order of Special Officer McGarry, declared he is going to stop betting at the grounds. He said:

We have been trying since last Monday to establish a method of keeping undesirable persons from the ball grounds and to stop this nefarious habit of gambling, which has become a nuisance to those who go there to see the game.

It is easier to keep the undesirable out than it is to put them out once they get in. I am going to stop betting on the grounds, and the undesirable persons are to be kept out if possible. The management of the ball grounds is cooperating with us, and we have taken this latest method of stopping such a nuisance if we can.

Dr. Bruce says he will prefer charges against Special Officer McGarry and will fight the case.

GIRL'S FATE IN BALANCE

The State Highway Commission today began an investigation of the automobile accident in Wellesley in which Miss Irene I. Fogg, a pretty Wellesley College sophomore, was struck and perhaps fatally injured by an automobile owned by John B. Walcott, a Brookline clubman. The car was driven by William H. Chapman, who is Walcott's chauffeur.

By its inquiry the Highway Commission seeks to determine the speed of the machine, to learn if every means was used to avoid the accident and to place the blame if any.

The police and courts will be appealed to to jail all auto drivers found guilty of fast driving.

The accident is the latest in the series to and under Greater Boston, in some of which persons have been killed outright. Chairman W. D. Sohier of the Highway Commission, speaking today of his investigation into the fatal automobile crash at Chilmark, declared that unless the surviving occupants of the cars which caused those forward and willingly tell all the facts the drivers of all particular in the tragedy will be arrested at once.

"Speeding" Denied by Owner.

Eye-witnesses of the Wellesley accident are reported to tell their stories of what happened to the commission. One of them James A. Hayward, of Natick, declared that the auto which struck and seriously hurt Miss Fogg did not exceed its speed. Mayward, who is the associate declares that especially after the cars were rounded and rained that the machine was neither racing nor speeding, but was moderate.

Miss Fogg is at the Newton Hospital in serious condition. Her father, Charles E. Fogg of Boston street, Wellesley, told an AMERICAN reporter that he feared that she might die. At the hospital it was said that a slim chance for her life and her condition was somewhat better hopeful, as she had slept a few hours during the night.

When she was hit Miss Fogg was standing in the road just outside the west gate of the Wellesley College campus. She was awaiting a trolley car to take her home for a few days. She was struck by the Walcott machine.

Chief of Police Kingsbury of Wellesley who investigated the accident, declared that if the girl victim died, he would secure a warrant for the arrest of Chapman.

Mr. Wolcott, owner of the car, who lives on Beacon street, Brookline, said:

Says Accident Was Unavoidable.

"The accident was unavoidable and I am terribly distressed over it. All I want is a square deal. I left my home in Brookline to go to Natick. In Wellesley, at the time we struck the girl, we were going seventeen or eighteen miles an hour—not any more. We were not speeding. I have two cars, but my other machine did not come up until twenty minutes after the accident.

"We were neither racing nor speeding with any other car. There was no other car on the road at the time. If we had been going at great speed, striking the girl as we did, we would have cut her to pieces.

"She was standing partially behind a large tree when we caught sight of her. She started across the road. We blew our horn. If she had kept on, she would have got by clear. But as women often do, in their fright, she stood still for a moment and then started back toward the tree. The chauffeur did everything he could to swerve the car.

"Perhaps it may have been that the horn frightened her. But it was her fright and her turning back that caused the accident as much as anything else. There certainly was no reckless driving at all.

"I picked the girl up and hurried her to the nearest drug store and then to the hospital. I fervently hope and pray she will recover.

"I have not been in any automobile accidents, never care for speeding or racing and my chauffeur is a careful operator. He never tasted liquor to his life. He almost collapsed when he found he had struck the girl."

Miss Fogg's mother was prostrated at her home today. Her father, who had remained through the night at his daughter's side, said today:

"Neither my wife nor I can think now of any efforts to prosecute anybody. Our whole time centres on our daughter and how to save her life. She may die. Any prosecution we might make now would not help to prolong her life. We trust that justice will be done if it can be proven that the rules of the road were not observed by the chauffeur. Myself and my wife are looking to the Highway Commission to see that justice shall be done so that in the future pedestrians may be protected from automobilists who may break the laws of the State."

Miss Fogg received numerous injuries about the head and body. She was badly cut about the head and face and was otherwise severely bruised. Three of her ribs were fractured. She was unconscious when picked up by Mr. Walcott.

MR. WHIZZLER

This is Whizzler and his racing car, Thunderbolt III.

Whizzler is the type of motorist who makes himself unpopular with all sane automobilists and pedestrians.

Whizzler's idea is, judging from his actions, that he is the only man who has any rights on the public highway.

He cannot understand why other people shouldn't spend all their time indoors.

His notion is that the State builds expensive roads simply that racing cars may burn them up.

Some of his fellow-citizens say Whizzler has "more money than brains." They say he was "brought up wrong." They complain that his parents spoiled him. They say he was expelled from four or five colleges, that he hangs around the Bright Light district, that he consorts with evil companions, and that when he has "lighted up" at night he and Thunderbolt III. are a menace to life.

These people are evil-minded, envious, bitter. Whizzler doesn't mind them. He says they can go South, as far as he is concerned.

Other people criticise Whizzler.

These are folks who own automobiles of their own.

Some motorists will not be on the same road with Whizzler after nightfall, if they know it. These are motorists who tell you glibly that "nine-tenths of all the automobile accidents came from mixing gasoline with alcohol."

Whizzler calls these folks old fussbudgites. "Do not come into my car," he warns his friends, "unless you want to ride fast."

His idea of a spin on the road is to throw her wide open and catch that red light, away far off ahead. When you have caught that one, catch another. Let nothing pass you.

And he never wants for company. Any night in the week Whizzler can go down among the Lights and get another fellow and two girls. The other fellow may be a merchant from Bangor, Me., in town for his season's buying, or an attorney from Worcester, settling up a little matter, or even a school teacher from Somewhere Else, making a sociological investigation for the good that it may do. We will say nothing about the ladies.

Then the Hospital List.

Sometimes they run into another car, or a market wagon bound for Boston with a load of early vegetables, or even the side of a house.

Then the hospital list gets into the newspapers. It looks impressive, but it causes talk back home.

Whizzler doesn't care. Having lived through football, and such like, a little thing like an accident has no terrors for him.

He can stand the contempt that is felt for him by automobilists who use the motor car for business or pleasure, but who prefer to die in their beds with the folks around them.

"I find the world a fine place," Whizzler says, "but for two things. I cannot imagine why folks have to cross our highways on foot, and it is beyond my understanding why motor cars do not travel faster. From Boylston street to Broadway in an hour would be my idea of traveling along."

COMES TO OPEN DR. FRIEDMANN INSTITUTE HERE

Dr. J. Edward Stubbert of New York, for several years in charge of the Loomis berculosis sanitarium at Liberty, N. Y., came to Boston today to establish a Friedmann Institute for the treatment of tuberculosis by giving of Dr. Friedmann's serum.

He consulted with several physicians at the Hotel Westminster. After the conference, Dr. Stubbert announced he would establish the Institute at some place in the Back Bay yet to be selected.

Dr. Stubbert, who was born in Malden, said today:

"This institute is to be conducted absolutely on ethical principles and poor patients are to be treated absolutely free. We shall expect people able to pay to do so.

"The only restriction we place on the treatment of poor patients is that they come to us recommended by any reputable charitable organization, or any priest, minister or rabbi, and endorsed by their family physician.

Men Put Out Fire In Store, Board Up Window and Go

PORTSMOUTH, N. H., May 15.—Isaac Berkovitz unlocked his shoe store on Islington street today and found it damaged $100 by a counter fire. A front window had been broken, then boarded up.

Query?

Who put out the fire and boarded up the window?

Police and firemen knew nothing of it. There had been no alarm. At mid-morning Dennis Kelly and William Canty strolled in and said:

"Ike, we put your fire out for you, did you know it?"

Then they explained:

"We were going home at 1:30 and saw the fire through the window. No, we didn't pull any alarm. We broke the window enough to crawl through, smothered the fire, crawled out, found a board, boarded up the window and kept on home. Not a bit of trouble, Ike. Do that for a man any time."

HEAVIER PENALTIES ONE WAY TO CHECK MOTOR CRASHES, SAYS SOHIER

Increase the penalties for reckless driving from one year, the maximum now, to three years.

Revoke permanently the licenses of drunken operators, whether these operators be chauffeurs or owners.

Give jail sentences to drunken operators even if no fatality results from their recklessness.

Make no charge of "manslaughter" against reckless operators who cause fatalities. Experience shows that juries will not convict of "manslaughter" while they will of reckless driving. Then impose the maximum three years in jail in an aggravated case.

These are some suggestions made today by Chairman W. D. Sohier of the Highway Commission to the AMERICAN, which in the chairman's opinion will reduce the possibility of automobile accidents to a minimum. He declared:

I admit we are having more auto accidents than we should have. We will continue, of course, to have auto accidents just as we will have accidents of other kinds. But we can reduce the number. The Legislature can afford valuable help and one bill is now pending to aid in the reduction.

Driving at high speed and the operation of cars by intoxicated drivers are responsible for about all our accidents. Both can properly be classed as reckless driving.

We should have a law prohibiting a speed of over twenty-five miles an hour on any road or street in the State. With such a law there would be at once a great drop in the number of accidents. The death racer would disappear from our suburban roads.

Severe penalties should be imposed for a violation of this uniform twenty-five-mile-an-hour speed. At present the maximum penalty for reckless driving is anywhere from a fine to from two weeks to one year in jail.

Firm on Drunkenness.

I would have the extreme penalty made three years. I would have reckless driving the broad term, to include driving by drunken operators and accidents where fatalities result and accidents of all kinds due to carelessness or downright negligence. To the drunken operator no mercy should be shown. He should not only lose his license permanently, but should be given a sentence in jail. This should apply as well to an owner found driving his machine while intoxicated as to the hired driver who seeks his livelihood at the wheel.

I believe the law should be changed so that no operator, in case of fatality, should be charged with manslaughter. Juries will not convict an operator of a machine on this charge. That has been the experience in other States as well as in Massachusetts.

Chief Justice Aiken had before him a case where an intoxicated driver ran down and killed a man. He was charged with manslaughter and tried. The chief justice thought the jury would be out about three minutes. Instead, they were out a long time and then brought in "not guilty."

On a second trial where reckless driving was charged the man was promptly found guilty. The district attorney of Middlesex informs me that it is impossible to convict of manslaughter in automobile fatalities. Other district attorneys take the same view. So let us have a severe jail penalty for reckless driving and for drunken operators. Then let the courts use their discretion in cases no conditions warrant.

In aggravated cases they could impose the three-year maximum penalty. They could secure jury convictions for reckless driving where they could not for manslaughter. Then let the jail terms be used unsparingly.

Jail sentences would teach a prompt lesson to operators. We have too few of these sentences today.

Give us the twenty-five-mile speed maximum, increase the penalty for reckless driving, send drunken operators to jail and not be sparing of long jail terms for those whose recklessness cause deaths and we'll have automobile travel in Massachusetts made safer for those in the cars as well as for those upon the streets.

Massachusetts roads should neither be made race courses nor death courses.

Need More Inspectors.

This board should have an increased force of inspectors and investigators of its own. We have now 55,000 automobiles and motor cycles registered in the State.

It may be surprising for the people to know that there were almost 2,500 accidents last year, with 2,000 people injured and 142 killed.

I should say the courts are cooperating with us as they should in doing their part by punishment to lessen reckless driving, except in a case now and then. Last year the courts sent us 3,670 cases for consideration. These cases came from seventy-five of the eighty-three courts in the State. The courts convicted in 2,800 odd cases. These included all violations of the automobile laws.

The courts are generally prompt. Just now we're awaiting a report from Judge Merritt on the case of Dr. Knowles. I cannot see how Dr. Knowles, pleading guilty to operating his machine while intoxicated, should have his case placed on probation.

A doctor who drives his machine while drunk and does damage is no different in the eyes of the law than the poor fellow who drives for a livelihood and takes a nip too much while at the wheel. Whether we hear early from Judge Merritt or not, Dr. Knowles will hear early from us. We will have his case before us.

VINCENT GIRL FINED; 13 UP AS SCORCHERS

Miss Annie Nelson, a Vincent Club girl, who lives at No. 274 Marlboro street, was the most conspicuous in a squad of thirteen offending automobilists who were haled before Judge Murray today. Miss Nelson and all but a few were fined.

Miss Nelson pleaded guilty to three complaints—overspeeding, operating an automobile without a certificate and operating without a license.

She was fined $5 for overspeeding and the other two complaints were placed on file.

CONFERENCE HALTS PALMIST WILL CONTEST

The hearing on the admission to probate of the will of John William Fleteher, the palmist, who committed suicide in his apartments when the police came to arrest him, was put over by Judge Lawton in the Probate Court at East Cambridge this forenoon until later in the day to allow a conference of the several attorneys representing different interests.

Attorney Samuel L. Bullen, representing eleven cousins, nephews and nieces of the dead man, declared before Judge Lawton today that he had reason to believe that a later will than the one it is now sought to probate is in existence, and that this will, which he has not yet been able to find, deposes of the palmist's property in a way which would satisfy the relatives.

MRS. LATHROP BROWN, formerly Helen Hooper of Boston, who with her husband has leased the historic home of the Carrolls of Carrollton in Maryland.

HAS NEW WAY TO MAKE GASOLINE

LONDON, May 15.—A gasoline famine is imminent, but it can be relieved by the recovery of benzol from ordinary illuminating gas, according to Mr. Doherty, a New York gas expert. According to Mr. Doherty, 12,000,000 gallons of benzol annually could be obtained from the gas of London alone.

BOSTON WOMAN PRESIDES OVER CARROLL MANOR

Again a Boston society girl becomes mistress of a nationally famous estate. This time it is Mrs. Lathrop Brown, the New York Congressman's wife, who as pretty Helen Hooper of Boston and Manchester-by-the-Sea was known as "Boston's wealthiest bachelor girl."

Boston girls have become noted for the ease with which they glide from the carefree life of a society debutante into the cares of a big household, whether it be farm, plantation, English country home or awated castle abroad. So it is with the wealthy bride of Congressman Brown, who with her husband has leased Doughoregan Manor, the historic home of the "Carrolls of Carrollton."

The Browns will occupy the Carroll place for the Summer, it is in Carrollton, Maryland. There the Boston society girl and her husband can indulge their love of thoroughbred horses. Mrs. Brown is also planning to be hostess to a number of house parties.

The Carroll manor house is famous in song and story. The Carrolls are supposed to be descended from the old Kings of Munster, Ireland. It is now owned by Mr and Mrs. Charles Carroll.

Congressman and Mrs. Brown are both fond of sports. The bride inherited from her father, Robert Chamblet Hooper of Boston, the stable which ten years ago included some of the best horses and steeplechasers in the country. The couple are now racing their horses under the name of "Miss Chamblet." Some of their winners have been "Rice Grain," "Bill Andrews" and "Planter."

As Miss Hooper, the bride was one of the most popular of Boston's debutantes. Her great fortune was given absolutely into her power by the courts as a result of a friendly suit brought by her to test the legality of her mother's will. Her mother was Helen Ames.

QUITS HARVARD TO AID ROCKEFELLER

Edgar H. Wells, Harvard '07, for a year acting dean of the university and six years ago urged as successor to President Emeritus Eliot, is today preparing to take up his new duties in New York in connection with John D. Rockefeller's charitable work. The announcement of Mr. Wells' resignation as general secretary of the Harvard Alumni Association came as a surprise to Harvard men, who recognize him as one of the best known graduates of recent years. In New York he will be associated with Jerome D. Greene, '96, formerly secretary to Dr. Eliot.

Miss Marion King Weds John Pfeil on Her 18th Birthday

You can't tell Miss Marion Bedell King of Newton Centre anything about Friday being an unlucky day.

Tomorrow she will be eighteen years old, and the bride of John Simon Pfeil of Brookline (Harvard '10).

Their engagement was announced last November by Miss King's grandmother, Mrs. Emma C. King, of No. 511 Ward street, Newton Centre.

"Maybe eighteen is young to be married," said the bride-to-be today, "but we didn't want to wait any longer than we had to and my eighteenth birthday was the first day we could marry, when I should be of age. So we are being married tomorrow."

"You are not superstitious?"

"Not a bit. Why, I wish it was Friday, the thirteenth, instead of the sixteenth, just to show that I don't believe in luck."

Miss King is a graduate of Dana Hall, Wellesley. Mr Pfeil was in the Harvard Dramatic Club and the Pi Eta society. He took part in college dramatics.

The birthday wedding will take place at 2 o'clock at Mrs. King's home. The Rev. W. E. Huntington, D. D., former president of Boston University, will officiate.

Miss Nathalie King, sister of the bride-elect, will be bridesmaid and Sheldon Holbrook Tolles of Cleveland (Harvard '12), will be best man.

WOMAN WHOSE HUSBAND IS ILL REFUSED DIVORCE

Judge Morton in the Suffolk Divorce Session refused a divorce to Mrs. Florence A. Thomas of Boston, who wanted a legal separation from her husband, Richard R. Thomas, because he had gone to Arizona to fight the great white plague. "Because a man is ill and has to go West, is no reason why his wife should not stick to him," said Judge Morton. "I see no reason for granting this libel and dismiss it without prejudice. Why didn't you go to work?"

Her father told the court that his daughter was a "hothouse plant" and that her husband couldn't support her if she had joined him.

MRS. HELEN TALBOT IN GOOD HEALTH

Friends of Mrs. Helen Talbot were glad to learn today that the report of her death was untrue. The newspapers were notified that Mrs. Talbot's death had occurred at her home in Atlantic.

MORE GUARDS FOR HOPEDALE DRAPER PLANT

MILFORD, May 15.—With not less than three hundred regular and special police and detectives in Milford and Hopedale, it is understood that the forces guarding the mills and loyal operatives will at once be increased by the addition of fifty patrolmen and detectives.

Fifty more strike-breakers arrived from Fitchburg today, making a total of two hundred who have come during the week from Fall River, New Bedford and other Massachusetts cities.

A rumor of "Black Hand" threats against members of the Draper family recalls the time two years ago when similar letters were received by Superintendent Nutting and George Albert Draper, treasurer of the Draper Company, now traveling in Egypt. At that time an arrest followed, resulting in the sending of a man named Costello to prison for seven years.

GIRL TELLS OF JUGGLING IN REVERE BOOKS

Mrs. Gladys B. Hamilton, clerk in the Revere tax collector's office, appeared before Assistant District Attorney Thomas A. Lavelle today and told what she knew about the disappearance of $900 from the books of the Revere assessors.

Mrs. Hamilton was the first to discover entries alleged to be falsified. She reported her suspicions to Collector Arthur C. Pendergast, who called on the District Attorney's office when refused an opportunity to examine the books.

Mr. Lavelle said today:

"We are going to sift this matter to the bottom. I have subpoenaed the books, and with the assistance of the Grand Jury tomorrow we are going to find out what there is in this matter."

Meanwhile the assessors maintain a mysterious silence. They say they are acting under the advice of Town Solicitor Samuel R. Cutler.

Assessor William H. Colcord tried today to get at the assessors' books, but he could not make the combination lock work. Collector Pendergast charges the lock has been tampered with to obstruct the investigation.

Miss Ellen H. McAdam, chief clerk in the assessors' office, had to shout under the burden of the assessors' refusal to allow anyone to see the books. She was in a highly nervous state when approached in the office today. She said:

"I've been drawn into this matter more than I deserve or desire. I certainly hope this trouble between the assessors and the District Attorney's office will be settled soon. I am quite sick as the result of it."

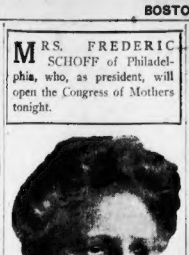
Tax Collector Pendergast reiterated his belief today that the combination on the vault had been tampered with. He said: "The combination was not touched by Mr. Colcord of the Board of Assessors, for Mr. Colcord was unable to open the door when he tried last night to get the books. I believe it has been tampered with. For what purpose or by whom it is not for me to say.

"Everybody in Revere knows that Mr. Colcord has been the minority member of the board on all matters coming before them for consideration. He was especially anxious to get the books so that hundreds of Revere citizens might have the taxes they have paid reported."

PRINT PICTURES IN FINAL EFFORT TO RECOVER SON

SPRINGFIELD, May 15.—Driven nearly to distraction by nine months of fruitless search for her three-year-old son, Robert, who was kidnapped by his father, Mrs. Rose Ethel Thompson, who lives in the Round Hill section, is today making what may be a supreme effort to locate her little boy. She is having her own and her sister's portraits published in the newspapers, declaring that should the boy see the pictures he would recognize his mother and aunt.

Mrs. Thompson was married in February, 1900, in Richmond, Va., knowing that her husband had served a term in the Virginia State prison. They were both engaged in missionary work and she believed his protestations of reform. They came to this city in 1910.



MRS. FREDERIC SCHOFF of Philadelphia, who, as president, will open the Congress of Mothers tonight.

CALHOUN SAYS U. S. SHOULD CALL CHINA A FRIEND

WASHINGTON, May 15.—William J. Calhoun, retiring minister to China, in a statement published here today declares he China is a nation we can proudly call our friends and that Yuan Shi-Kai, its president, is a great statesman.

"With thousands of years of belief in their Chinese practices, progress will be slow," says Mr. Calhoun. "They do not wish to hurry their progress for they mine the welfare of their people is at stake. The political parties are more or secret societies and do not work openly. Industrial progress is favorable. Every railroad is making money. Owing to the recognition by the United States, China feels it is on its honor to follow our teachings."

RIBESMEN OF MOROCCO AT WAR

PARIS, May 15.—War exists between the followers of Sultan Mulai Yusef of Morocco and the pretender to the Moorish throne, it is reported in war office dispatches today. In one battle forty-five of the Sultan's troops were killed.

LEADERS HERE FOR CONGRESS OF MOTHERS

Prominent members of the Congress of Mothers' and Parent Teachers' Associations continued to arrive in Boston today from many parts of the country for the opening tonight at the Copley-Plaza of the seventeenth annual meeting. Among the early arrivals were Mrs. Frederic Schoff of Philadelphia, national president, and her daughter, Miss Eunice M Schoff.

Among the prominent people here for the sessions are Dr. Julia Holmes Smith, Mrs. Andrew J. Graham and Mrs. Edgar A. Hall of Chicago; Mrs. Edwin B. Weeks of Kansas City, Mo., one of the vice-presidents; Mrs. J. G. Nugent of St. Louis, president of the Missouri State Association; Mrs. George Steers of Chicago and Mrs. Charles R. Brenton of Dallas Centre, Ia., State president.

Mrs. William Everett Howe of Wollaston, chairman of the committee of arrangements, Miss Julia F. Callahan, auditor of the State Association, and Mrs. William N. Irving of West Roxbury, assistant secretary of the Boston Home and School Association, are active in greeting the members and delegates.

Great emphasis was laid by all the delegates on the fact that the congress is of interest to fathers as well as to mothers, and that men are not only welcome at the meetings, but bold office in the national organization.

UNITARIAN CHURCH SUPPORTS EUGENICS

NEW YORK, May 15.—Supporting the crusade for eugenics begun recently by the Rev. Henry E. Jackson of the Christian Union Congregational Church, Montclair, the congregation of Unity Church, in the same city, voted at its annual meeting to instruct the pastor, the Rev. Edgar S. Wiers, to require health certificates from those who apply to be married. The decree demands a certificate from bride and bridegroom.

WALKER TO SPEAK.

Joseph Walker, former Speaker of the House of Representatives, will speak before the Free Religious Association at its forty-sixth annual convention in Ford Hall, May 28, at 3 p. m. on "How Much Religion Is Left in Politics."

PLANT BOMB AT ENGLISH ART GALLERY

LONDON, May 15.—A suffragette bomb, composed of dynamite cartridges, was found outside the National Art Gallery on the north side of Trafalgar square, in the heart of London, today.

That the bomb had been placed by women was evident from the fact that it was wrapped in a copy of The Suffragette, the official organ of the Women's Social and Political Union. Had the bomb exploded rare paintings worth incalculable sums would have been ruined.

The bomb was confiscated by Scotland Yard men and examined by an expert from the Home Office. Its makeup was similar to that of other bombs planted by the women. It is evident that this, as well as other bombs, was manufactured by experts, and the police are trying to run down the bomb factory.

The National Gallery was built between the years of 1832 and 1838, at a cost of $500,000. At three different periods it was subsequently enlarged. It contains the most costly single collection in the world, including Raphael's "Madonna."

Great emphasis was laid by all the delegates on the fact that the congress is of interest to fathers as well as to mothers, and that men are not only welcome at the meetings, but bold office in the national organization.

Hurley to Show His Fire Films to Censor Board

Mayor John F. Hurley of Salem, whose posing at a sham fire in his home for the benefit of a moving picture concern aroused the ire of some Salemites, will offer a private view of the pictures at the Federal Theatre next Sunday to a board of censors appointed from among the objectors.

"If there is anything in the scenes depicted," says Mayor John F., "that in the opinion of the censors brings discredit or in any way reflects upon the city, let them cut it out. Let them not consider any feelings at all. If their sensibilities are offended by any pose I took or any action of mine in the pictures, they can cut the films and there'll be no objection from me. They can eliminate what they see fit. They only need to say the word."

Threats of a recall for Mayor Hurley became he posed for the "movies" are heard of but little. The mayor laughs at them all.

Proper Care of Hair and Complexion

(The Home Doctor.)

Scalp cleanliness means everything in growing and preserving beautiful hair, because only from a clean scalp will healthy hair grow. By shampooing with a teaspoonful of carbonex (which roots little), dissolved in cup hot water, immediate cleanliness results; dandruff and scalp-discomfort are removed instantly, your head feels good, the hair dries quickly and takes on a most soft fluffiness and lustre without any tendency to become streaky, brittle or harsh.

No woman will have cause to complain of shininess or sallow, oily skin, if, instead of face powder, she uses spurmax-lotion, which, when on, seems part of skin. This wonderful skin-whitener and complexion-beautifier is easily made at home at small cost by dissolving 4 ounces spurmax in ½ pint witch hazel (or hot water), then adding 2 teaspoonfuls glycerine.

It does not show when on, nor does it rub off as easily as powder, and it keeps the skin smooth and fresh, and protects it from chapping.—Advertisement.

ENGLAND FORCES PERSIA TO SIGN

CONSTANTINOPLE, May 15.—An Anglo-Persian convention relating to British control in Southern Persia was signed today. This is an echo of the stormy days when Russia invaded Persia, with the consent of England and against the protests of W. Morgan Shuster, the American steward of Persian finances, who was, in fact, ruler of the country. Russia and England agreed to split Persia into two spheres of influence. Russia took the northern territory. English soldiers will patrol all the trade routes along the Persian gulf.

SENATE REPORT WILL EXONERATE LIEUT.-GOV. O'HARA

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 15.—The special committee of the Illinois Senate investigating charges against Lieutenant-Governor O'Hara, today prepared a report to be presented to the Senate next week. It will report that the charges against the Lieutenant-Governor were without foundation.

The committee ended its investigation by hearing Thomas Vredenburgh, a young Springfield, Ill., millionaire, who said he knew Lieutenant-Governor O'Hara was not guilty of any immorality implied in the affadavit signed by Maude Robinson.

"My Feet Were Just Aching For TIZ"

Let Your Poor, Tired, Chafed, Tender Feet "Spread Out" Gloriously in a Bath of TIZ!

Send at Once for Free Trial Package.

"O, O, glory what a feelin'! Wonderful what TIZ will do for your feet!"

Just take your shoes off, and then put those weary, shoe-crinkled, achy, corn-pestered, bunion-bothered feet of yours in a TIZ bath. Your toes will wriggle with joy. They'll look up at you and almost talk, and then they'll take another dive in that TIZ bath! Yes, TIZ is life to feet!

The man or woman who says there's anything like, or as good as, TIZ never had a foot in a TIZ bath. You'd be like to wear smaller shoes, too, when you use TIZ; your feet will keep cosy.

Miss M. Pearl Lloyd, Glendora, Wis., got one box of TIZ for her mother. "She has had sore, tender feet for a long time," writes Miss Lloyd. "but after using TIZ her feet are not troubling her."

TIZ operates under a new principle, drawing out all the poisonous exudations that make feet sore, corny and tired. There's nothing else like TIZ, so refuse any imitation. If anyone offers you a substitute, just remember your poor, suffering feet, and tell him to give you what you asked for.

TIZ, 25 cents a box, sold everywhere, or sent direct, on receipt of price. Money back if TIZ doesn't do all we say. For a free trial package write today to Walter Luther Dodge & Co., Chicago, Ill. Recommended by all Drug Stores, Department and general stores.

CYCLONE KILLS 12; MANY HURT IN NEBRASKA

OMAHA, May 15.—Twelve persons were known to be dead, four others were reported killed and many others suffered serious injuries and heavy damage was done to property in a cyclone which swept a path fifty miles long and several hundred yards wide through Nebraska and this city.

Partially restored wire service at Seward, where the storm was believed to have started, verified earlier reports that twelve persons were killed. Four were reported dead at Tomara, twelve miles from Seward. Several towns were out of communication with Omaha today, and it was feared a still larger death list would be reported.

Eleven bodies had been recovered at Seward early today.

Panic in Omaha.

The storm caused a panic in Omaha, where the memory of the master tornado which killed 100 persons and wiped out the homes of thousands was still fresh. Many houses in the southern portion of Omaha were torn from their foundations and the residents were driven to their cyclone cellars.

Reports still unconfirmed early today said that the towns of Yore, Stapleton, Waco, Grafton, Agnew and Ceresco, were wiped out. Wires were down to these points and nothing definite was received from any of them. Serious damage was reported from Utica, McCool and Lushton, although no loss of life was mentioned in the meagre reports.

300 Escape at Ball Park.

At a ball park in the western part of Seward, where the storm was most severe, 300 persons who were attending a game, fled from the grounds and a few minutes later the grandstand was wrecked.

Several relief trains left Omaha today for towns and cities which were visited by the cyclone. One trainload of physicians and undertakers left Lincoln, Neb., for Seward.

SAYS FLY CAUSES INFANT PARALYSIS

ST. LOUIS, May 15.—Warning against the fly as the commonest cause of infantile paralysis was given by Dr. E. W. Saunders of this city in address before the Missouri Medical Association. Dr. Saunders traced a connection between infantile paralysis and the fly in this country, and gave that as an explanation why the disease was more prevalent in country and suburban districts than in the crowded part of a city.

DEPOSITORS OF WRECKED BANK FIGHT SECRECY IN SUIT FOR LOST FUNDS

Cambridge depositors in the defunct National City Bank of Cambridge, who lost heavily through the wrecking of that institution, forwarded to Washington, through their counsel, Joshua S. Abericach, today, a formal demand for full publicity in the suit of Receiver John L. Bates against the officers and directors of the bank to recover the missing funds.

The depositors seek to know how their money was lost.

They ask whether any other or others beside George W Coleman, the $12 a week bookkeeper of the wrecked institution, is criminally involved.

These depositors include the following:

Herman Ginsberg, Boston Branch Clothing Company, No. 62 Massachusetts avenue; John Tibiler, men's clothier, No. 445 Massachusetts avenue; Henry J. Mooney, No. 231 Norfolk street, and Daniel J. Toomey, 213 Windsor avenue, publishers of the Cambridge Sentinel.

The letter of Attorney Auerbach in behalf of depositors reads:

Hon. T. P. Kane, Acting Comptroller of the Currency, Washington, D. C.:

My Dear Sir—While I am general counsel for the Boston AMERICAN, which has been using every proper means, through the publicity which the AMERICAN has given these secret dealings, to have the trial of the case of John L. Bates, receiver of the Cambridge National Bank, against the directors, tried in the open before the master, I am also acting for a considerable number of the depositors, and it is upon their behalf that I appeal to you.

These depositors believe, and I believe, and in view of the telegram received by the Boston AMERICAN from you, I think we voice your opinion, that there is no reason for the secrecy of a trial of a cause which is the public's business, showing how national banks can be looted, and what care and vigilance boards of directors give to their duties.

I believe, and the Boston AMERICAN believes, that the trial of a cause under these conditions is a disgrace to American jurisprudence, and is something that ought not to be approved by the national government nor its officials in charge of national banks.

Un-American Spirit.

This case is being tried within the Commonwealth of Massachusetts, in a court house belonging to the county, and the interests of a large number of citizens who deposited in this bank and whose savings have been swept away, through what the receivers allege is negligence in the performance of their duties by the directors, and yet these same depositors are denied admittance to such hearings, and the press and the public are excluded.

It has been the general impression that the bank was looted by one of its bookkeepers, now serving a term of imprisonment for so doing, but notwithstanding the close secrecy of the trial, it has leaked out that more than $100,000 was stolen by some other person, and these depositors are unable to get any information regarding

The present method of hearing the trial is un-democratic, un-American, and smacks of the dark ages, and is a special privilege that no one but a wealthy defendant could possibly have in this Commonwealth.

Calls Method "Scandalous."

It is nothing less than scandalous, and practically every Boston paper has mentioned these star chamber hearings, though the Boston AMERICAN has called the most attention to it, as we have for years made it a point that all meetings of boards, in the employ of the State or city, and the trials in which the public is interested, shall be open to the public, on the ground that it is the public's business.

Having exhausted our efforts locally, as representing these depositors, I appeal to you to instruct the receiver to ask for open hearings, which will be at once granted by the master.

Yours respectfully,
JUNIUS T. AUERBACH.

By J. C. KERRIGON.

It was not surprising that the Legislative Committee on Roads and Bridges failed to change its attitude on the motor truck bill. It originally reported a bill to tax motor trucks $5 for the first ton and $5 for each additional ton, which bill was recommitted to the committee. Rehearings were given the matter and much data presented, but the presentation was of such a character as to have no effect upon the committee or on the bill.

It is now up to the motor truck interests to defeat the measure when it comes up for consideration before both branches of the Legislature. That such an effort will be made is not questioned.

WESTMINSTER PAYS DUCHESS $100,000 A YEAR

LONDON, May 15.—The Duke and Duchess of Westminster have signed a formal deed of separation. She is to receive $100,000 a year from him. She has taken a house called Lochmore on Ham Common, a London suburb.

Their intimates say the Duke tried hard to persuade his wife to divorce him, but she refused. Her mother, Mrs. Cornwallis West, strongly supported her in this determination. Besides she took legal advice and was informed that the King's proctor would probably intervene on the ground of collusion should the case come before the divorce court. The Duke seems to have settled down for the time, and is taking a more serious interest in public affairs. He denies now that he ever intended to bring a divorce suit or mention the Duke of Alba in it.

The King and Queen learned that the Duchess had been excluded from Grosvenor House, her husband's town residence—not published here, of course, but told exclusively in these dispatches. Their Majesties were shocked and made special inquiries about the health of Lady Ursula and Lady Mary Grosvenor, the Duchess' young daughters.

WAGE COMMISSION PROVIDED IN BILL

WASHINGTON, May 15. Senator James Hamilton Lewis of Illinois has introduced a measure to establish a national wage commission to insure a minimum wage in all work pertaining to the Federal government.

Well, We Can Go to Revere Now and Not Wear Blinders

The man who operates the "blast of wind at the Pit at Revere Beach, which places the women patrons of that amusement resort in the same predicament they would be if they were rounding the corner of Tremont and Boylston streets in a typhoon, said today the vote of the Revere Selectmen barring that feature from the Pit was a great blow to him.

The situation was thoroughly aired at a public hearing. Citizens had complained of the velocity of the situation, and a storm of protest soon arose.

Charles J. Ridgeway, Herbert N. Ridgeway and Charles L. Ridgeway, proprietors of the Pit, appeared before the board and said the Pit was not a place for serious meditation, but for fun and frolic. They offered to temper the wind, but a gale of objections was raised.

The vote was three to two for clamping on the lid.

German Nobility Will Not Recognize Nancy Leishman

BERLIN, May 15.—The association of high German nobility which regulates affairs connected with the semi-royal houses of the fatherland discussed the forthcoming marriage of Miss Nancy Leishman of Pittsburgh and the Duke of Croy at its annual meeting.

It was decided the daughter of the American ambassador could never hope to be recognized by a German count either as a duchess or as a "highness." The high nobility's apprehensions to reference to Miss Leishman's "unequal birth" do not appear to be interfering with the plans for the wedding in June.

Today's Beauty Recipes

By Miss Ida Mills.

"Women detest superfluous hair on the face and forearms because it gives them a masculine appearance and detracts from the feminine charm. To remove superfluous hair over your orifice with a paste made by mixing a little powdered delatone with water; leave on two minutes, wipe off, wash the skin and the hairs will be gone.

"Aches and pains cause the face to contract and form wrinkles. Mother's Salve, which can be bought in prepared form in any neighborhood, gives almost instant relief from aches and aches in back, or joints, sore muscles, rheumatism and neuralgia.

"The springtime is the season of youth, when every girl desires to look her very best. For a complexion of lilies and roses, apply each morning a cooling mask by dissolving an original package of mayatone in a half pint of witch hazel. It corrects blotched, muddy and sallow complexions and leaves the skin smooth, white, soft and lovely.

"A shampoo that merely washes the head is not sufficient. The parasites that cause falling, dull, faded and brittle hair must be removed. Mother's Shamoos does this, and leaves the scalp in a condition to encourage the growth of hair. It prevents baldness and makes the hair glossy, fluffy and fine."

WITHIN THE LAW

By Marvin Dana, from the Play of Bernard Veiller

PART I.

BY this time, Burke, a man of superior intelligence, as one must be to reach such a position of authority, had come to realize that here was a case not to be carried through by bluster, by intimidation, by the rough ruses familiar to the force.

"Don't fool yourself, my girl," he said in his huge voice, which was now modulated to a degree that made it almost unfamiliar to himself. "You can't go through with this. There's always a weak link in the chain somewhere. It's up to me to find it, and I will."

His candor moved her to a like sincerity.

"Now," she said, and there was respect in the glance she gave the stalwart man, "now you really sound dangerous."

There came an interruption, alike unexpected by all. Fannie appeared at the door.

"Mr. Edward Gilder wishes to see you, Miss Turner," she said, with no appreciation of anything dramatic in the announcement. "Shall I show him in?"

"Oh, certainly," Mary answered, with as admirable pretense of indifference while Burke glared at Demarest, and the District Attorney appeared ill at ease.

There entered the erect heavy figure of the man whom Mary had hated through the years. He stopped abruptly just within the room, gave a glance at the two men, then his eyes went to Mary, sitting at her desk, with her face lifted inquiringly. He did not pause to take in the beauty of that face, only its strength. He stared at her silently for a moment. Then he spoke in his ordinary voice, a little tremulous from anxiety.

"Are you the woman?" he said. There was something simple and primitive, something of dignity beyond the usual conventions, in his direct address.

And there was the same primitive simplicity in the answer. Between two strong natures there was no subterfuge, no suggestion of polite evasions, of tergiversation, only the plea of truth to truth. Mary's acknowledgment was as plain as his own question.

"I am a woman. What do you want?"

* * *

Thus two honest folk had met face to face.

"My son." The man's answer was complete.

But Mary touched a tragic note in her question. It was asked in no frivolous spirit, but, of a sudden, she sensed that his coming was altogether of his own volition, and not the result of his son's information, as at first she had supposed.

"Have you seen him recently?" she asked.

"No." Gilder answered.

"Then, why did you come?"

Thereat, the man was seized with a fatherly fury. His heavy face was contested, and his sonorous voice was harsh with virtuous rebuke.

"Because I intend to save my boy from a great folly. I am informed that he is infatuated with you, and Inspector Burke tells me—why—he tells me—why —he tells me——" He paused, unable for a moment to continue from an excess of emotion. But his gray eyes burned fiercely in accusation against her.

Inspector Burke himself filled the void in the halting sentence.

"I told you she had been an ex-convict."

"Yes," Gilder said, after he had regained his self-control. He stared at her pleadingly. "Tell me," he said with a certain dignity, "is this true?"

Here, then, was the moment for which she had longed through weary days, through weary years. Here was the man whom she hated, suppliant before her to know the truth. Her heart quickened. Truly, vengeance is sweet to one who has suffered unjustly.

"Is this true?" the man repeated, with something of horror in his voice.

"It is," Mary said quietly.

For a little, there was silence in the room. Once, Inspector Burke started to speak, but the magnate made an imperative gesture, and the officer held his peace. Always, Mary rested motionless. Within her, a fierce joy surged. Here was the time for her victory. Opposite her was the man who had caused her anguish, the man whose unjust action had ruined her life. Now he was her humble petitioner, but this servility could be of no avail to save him from shame. He must drink of the dregs of humiliation—and then again. No pity was too great to pay for a wrong such as that which he had put upon her.

At last Gilder was restored in a measure to his self-possession. He spoke with the sureness of a man of wealth, confident that money will salve any wound.

"How much?" he asked, baldly.

Mary smiled an inscrutable smile.

"Oh, I don't need money," she said, carelessly. "Inspector Burke will tell you how easy it is for me to get it."

Gilder looked at her with a newly dawning respect; then his shrewdness suggested a retort.

"Do you want my son to learn what you are?" he said.

Mary laughed. There was something dreadful in that burst of spurious amusement.

"Why not?" she answered. "I'm ready to tell him myself."

Then Gilder showed the true heart of him, in which love for his boy was before all else. He found himself wholly at a loss before the woman's unexpected reply.

"But I don't want him to know," he stammered. "Why, I've spared the boy all his life. If he really loves you —it will——"

At that moment, the son himself appeared hurriedly from the hallway. In his eagerness, he saw no one save the woman whom he loved. At his entrance, Mary rose and moved backward a step involuntarily, in sheer surprise over his coming, even though she had known he must come—perhaps from some other emotion, deeper, hidden as yet even from herself.

The young man, with his wholesome slight with tenderness, went swiftly to her, while the other three men stood silent, motionless, absorbed by the event. And Dick took Mary's hand in a warm clasp, pressed it tenderly.

"I didn't see father," he said happily, "but I left him a note on his desk at the office."

Then, somehow, the surcharged atmosphere penetrated his consciousness, and he looked around, to see his father standing grimly opposite him. But there was no change in his expression beyond a more radiant smile.

"Hello, Dad!" he cried, joyously. "Then you got my note?"

The voice of the older man came with a sinister force and saturnine.

"No, Dick, I haven't had any note."

"Dad, we're married. Mary and I were married this morning."

Gilder himself seemed dazed by the brief sentence.

"Say that again," he commanded.

Mary rejoiced to make the knowledge sure.

"I married your son this morning," she said in a matter-of-fact tone. "I married him. Do you quite understand, Mr. Gilder? I married him." In that insistence lay her ultimate compensation for untold misery. The father stood there wordless, unable to find speech against this calamity that had befallen him.

It was Burke who offered a diversion, a crude interruption after his own fashion.

"It's a frame-up," he roared. He glared at the young man. "Tell your father it ain't true. Why, do you know what she is? She's done time."

He paused for an instant, then spoke in a voice that was brutally menacing. "And, by God, she'll do it again!"

The young man turned toward his bride. There was disbelief, hope, despair, in his face, which had grown older by years with the passing of the seconds.

"It's a lie, Mary," he said. "Say it's a lie!" He seized her hand passionately.

There was no quiver in her voice as she answered. She drew her hand from his clasp, and spoke evenly.

"It's the truth."

"It's the truth!" the young man repeated, incredulously.

"It is the truth," Mary said, firmly. "I have served three years in prison.

"Mary," he said huskily, "there is a mistake."

Mary preserved her poise. Ted—she must not forget! This was the hour of her triumph. What mattered it that the honey of it was as ashes in her mouth? She spoke with a simplicity that admitted no denial.

"It's all quite true."

The man who had so loved her, so trusted her, was overwhelmed by the revelation. He stood trembling for a moment, tottered, almost it seemed would have fallen, but presently steadied himself and sank supinely into a chair, where he sat in impotent suffering.

The father looked at Mary with a reproach that was pathetic.

"See," he said, and his heavy voice was for once thin with passion, "see what you've done to my boy!"

"What is that compared to what you have done to me?"

Gilder stared at her in honest amazement. He had no suspicion as to the tragedy that lay between him and her.

"What have I done to you?" he questioned, uncomprehending.

"Do you remember what I said to you the day you and me sent away?"

The merchant regarded her with stark lack of understanding.

"I don't remember you at all," he said. The woman looked at him intently for a moment, then spoke in a colorless voice.

"Perhaps you remember Mary Turner, who was arrested four years ago for robbing your store. And perhaps you remember that she asked to speak to you before they took her to prison."

The heavy-jowled man gave a start.

"Oh, you begin to remember. Yes! There was a girl who swore she was innocent—yes, she swore that she was innocent. And she would have got off—only, you asked the judge to make an example of her."

"You are that girl?" he said. It was not a question, rather an affirmation.

"I am that girl."

There was a little interval of silence. Then, Mary spoke again, remorselessly.

"You took away my good name. You smashed my life. You put me behind the bars. You owe for all that * * * Well, I've begun to collect."

CASSIDY SAYS SOMEONE MUST BEAR BLAME FOR 16 DEATHS IN CANTON

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

Representative Lewis R. Sullivan has introduced in the House of Representatives an order for an investigation to fix the blame for the epidemic of tonsilitis which has cost sixteen lives in Canton.

The order was referred to the Committee on Rules. Representatives Benjamin F. Sullivan, George P. Webster, John F. McCarthy and others will support it.

The order offered by Representative Sullivan reads as follows:

Ordered, that the Committee on Public Health be authorized to give hearings, to summon witnesses and to administer oaths, for the purpose of determining whether the State Board of Health, or the Canton Board of Health, or both, were negligent in the case of the tonsilitis epidemic in Canton, which has resulted in sixteen deaths.

The demand for an investigation has grown out of the squabble between the Canton Board and the State Board. The facts admitted by both boards seem to be:

1—That on April 30 the Canton Board appealed to the State Board for help in the epidemic.

2—That in reply the State Board sent a man to Canton, and sent recommendations, but made no effective steps toward stopping the epidemic for a period of ten days.

3—That during this ten-day period, twelve people died, and four more died soon after.

4—That the Canton Board asked the State Board to make bacterial tests of the milk to which the epidemic was attributed. That the State Board did not make these tests.

5—That the Canton Board attempted to secure help from Dr. Rosenau's department at Harvard, but that Dr. Richardson, secretary of the State Board, telephoned Dr. Rosenau, with the result that the Harvard professors did not take any steps in the matter.

The State Board of Health toward the end of last week issued a statement announcing that because the Canton Board had not properly attended to the epidemic, they would assume control. The Canton Board replied with a bitter statement—signed by all three members of the board—attacking the State Board for its attitude toward the epidemic.

The conditions in Canton, and the obvious fact that someone has erred, and erred badly—THAT SOMEONE, IN SHORT, MUST ACCEPT THE RESPONSIBILITY FOR THE LOSS OF THOSE SIXTEEN LIVES, has awakened a wave of indignation throughout the state. I have heard complaints from a dozen people. One eminent physician called me on the telephone and said:

"The State Board of Health is terribly in the wrong in this Canton epidemic. They not only took no steps to check the spread of the disease, but they have undertaken to stop all the causes of the disease. If a similar epidemic should start in some other town tomorrow, the State Board would be no better equipped to fight it, even after its Canton experience.

"In New York, the State Board of Health studies each of these epidemics carefully, so as to be prepared, if a second epidemic occurs, to say at once—Such and such a condition caused this epidemic. By such and such measures you can stamp it out.' The State Board should have done this here."

Another doctor to whom I stated the facts, commented:

"If the circumstances are as they appear on the surface, Dr. Richardson, the secretary of the board, should be asked to resign at once. He has been derelict in his duty to the State."

These two doctors were not connected in any way with the epidemic. They were simply two men who know their business, know what a State Board of Health should do, and believe the present State Board is not doing its duty.

Tomorrow, I intend to quote at length the statement issued at the office of the State Board, and that issued by the Canton Board. Today, Representative Sullivan's order for an investigation should be passed. The time has come when it is imperative that full light be thrown on the mysterious workings of the State Board of Health.

CASSIDY PROTESTS SALE OF STORAGE EGGS AS FRESH

A recent federal report indicates a new line of activity on the part of the Federal food inspectors. Storage eggs were sold as fresh eggs. The sellers were prosecuted, pleaded guilty and paid a fine. The report reads:

On November 8, 1912, the United States attorney for the District of Columbia filed in the Police Court an information against Nicholas T. Redman of Washington, alleging the sale of a quantity of eggs as strictly fresh eggs.

Examination of the samples by the Bureau of Chemistry showed the following results: Out of twenty-four eggs, five were poor eggs, the others a fair grade of storage eggs. Microscopic evidence of storage, also odor and taste of storage eggs. On November 8 the defendant pleaded guilty, and the Court imposed a fine of $10.

Harry P. Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S food expert, in commenting on this case, said:

This is a common practice among a certain class of dealers—the sale of storage eggs as fresh. I know of one firm in the market district who advertise that all their eggs come from a certain farm. Customers are shown a white bearded old man, and are told that he is the farmer who brings in the eggs. As a matter of fact, this man has only a dozen hens, and the eggs sold are either fresh or storage eggs—of good quality, it is true—but sold in a fashion to mislead the purchaser. This is a practice that cheats the consumer. It should be stopped.

Asher Schuman, tailor, of No. 69 Harvard street, Everett, who, it is charged, assaulted his son, Julius, in a store near their home last night at 9 o'clock, because he played truant from school yesterday, was before Judge Mitchell in the Malden District Court today on an assault charge. He pleaded not guilty and furnished $1,000 bonds for hearing May 20.

NEW BEDFORD, May 15.—The case of the New York, New Haven & Hartford Railroad against E. L. Fisher Company of New Bedford, in which the railroad company is suing the produce house for $6.20, icing charges on fruit coming from California, was before Judge Mitchell in the district court today, but owing to absence of counsel for the railroad the case was continued to May 22.

RIVAL KISSED "HUBBY" 20 MINUTES EACH DAY, SAYS WIFE'S WITNESS

NEW YORK, May 15.—The world's kissing record for time is today twenty minutes and the holder of it is Marcus Belford, an advertising man, if his wife, who is suing for divorce, and her witness, Mrs. Ada Schweikert of Newark, are not mistaken. A "plump, dark-haired person," not Mrs. Belford, is the joint holder of the osculatory record.

"I never saw such affection," Mrs. Schweikert testified. "Every morning before starting for work he would kiss and hug her from fifteen to twenty minutes, and it seemed as if they would never break away."

PROVIDENCE MAN GONE AND AFFAIRS MIXED

PROVIDENCE, May 15.—Former Alderman C. Edward Barney, for the past fifteen years prominent as a real estate dealer, is missing from his home since last Friday, and his business affairs are said to be involved to the extent of not less than $100,000.

Mrs. Barney, who has just returned from a stay at Atlantic City, N. J., today said that she was amazed to find that their fine home at Elmgrove and University avenues, in the aristocratic residential section of the city, had been sold to the Westminster bank.

"Although the deed is signed with my name, as well as Mr. Barney's, I certainly did not sign it," she declared with emphasis. "I have not the slightest idea where my husband has gone. I returned from Atlantic City expecting to find him. It is a mystery to me where he is."

Several women and clergymen are numbered among those who claim to have suffered loss through their real estate deals and investments with the missing man.

The estate of the late Rev. George H. Hanlon, who was pastor of the Methodist church at Vineyard Haven, is said to be seriously involved. Much of the $40,000 left by him was invested.

The Rev. R. H. Wolfenden, pastor of St. Barnabas Church, Agoonaug, stated that a few days ago Barney called him by telephone and asked if he had been warned by anonymous letters not to deal with Barney.

Barney, while alderman figured in the Knight street land deal, later investigated. By this deal the city paid $10,500 for property thought to be worth less than $10,000. The investigation was followed by no action.

Has Several Solutions.

Mystery Editor:

Along with a million others, more or less, it certainly "got my goat." Had it been one of the "Fair Sex" the mystery would have been easy of solution—simply carrying her three boys (boys) around, where everyone might see them.

It is either the picture of some foreign diplomat, out of a job—a mild case of "Rats in the Attic"—too Advance Agent of the "Just Out" in Paris fashions, or the portrait of the very man who put neck in neckties.

In any event, the "wise" attitude—the cut and finish of those hirsute appendages surmounting the triplets, to say nothing of the prominent position he has occupied as a typical (Boston) American gentleman, he has at least served to enliven the dull season, between hay and grass. So here's to the man, whoever he be. Who caught the most of us all at sea.

WALTER E. RUSHFORTH

He Used Philosophy.

Mystery Editor.

If my surmise is correct, the AMERICAN will award prizes to the five deepest and best analysis of what the enclosed picture means.

The conclusion which I arrived at in looking over the contest, is this:

The different Boston newspapers have been holding various contests during the past few months, and in order to be considered a "live" sheet, the AMERICAN has published this photograph, which, in its simplest analysis, is merely an advertising scheme.

To tell what the picture really depicts or represents, does not in my mind, answer the questions asked.

My conclusions are based upon a system of philosophy, which traces every action or thing, small or great, to some selfish motive.

Very truly yours,
HARRY OBER.

Sees Generosity in It.

This picture means that the AMERICAN is giving its readers one more golden chance to earn money. The only mystery to solve is: How can the AMERICAN always treat the public so generously?

Back Bay Modistes Organize to Fight Smuggling Gang

To protect themselves from the smuggling system which they claim is in operation throughout the Back Bay district among the tailors, dressmakers and milliners, 25 women from that district have banded together to fight the smugglers, and will petition the government for a complete investigation of conditions.

They classify the evaders of the customs law as "society smugglers, department store smugglers, dressmaker smugglers and professional smugglers."

JULIA MARLOWE AND SOTHERN IN TWELFTH NIGHT

Another success was added to the long list of Boston successes scored by Sothern and Marlowe last night when they gave before a well-filled house their interesting interpretation of "Twelfth Night."

Miss Marlowe, who has attained a most becoming degree of slimness, as Viola, was naturally the centre of interest and in the part of a boy was as winsome, if not more so, than in any other of her Shakespearian roles.

Each situation was handled with her usual daintiness and she was as pretty to look upon as she was to listen to.

Mr. Sothern as Malvolio, steward to Olivia, had a fine chance to display his versatility, which he surely did. From the proud, vain creature to the poor wronged madman of the prison cell and again to the much wronged hero he was all that even the most optimistic could desire.

Miss Leonore Chippendale made a dignified and pleasing Olivia, while Miss Millicent McLaughlin as Maria, was as mischievous and quite as good a troublemaker as those much maligned creatures are usually supposed to be.

Frederick Lewis as Orsino, Duke of Illyria, made a dignified and interesting lover, whose pinings and waitings were assuaged by his faithful servant, Viola, in the role of a boy.

Sir Toby Belch, uncle to Olivia, as played by Mark Taylor, was all that could be desired in his role of the drunken tiller and with his flimsy-looking bosom companion, Mr. Andrew Aguecheek, as played by Malcolm Bradley, gave all the mirth necessary to keep up the good cheer of the audience.

Others to the cast who contributed their parts admirably were Walter Connolly, as Sebastian, brother to Olivia, and William Harris as Antonio, a sea captain, friend to Sebastian.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—A score or more members of the House will leave New York Saturday on the transport Ancon for a sight-seeing tour of Panama Canal. HOLD SECRET CONFERENCE ON PLANS' THEFT

WASHINGTON, May 15.—With the mystery of the stolen plans of the dreadnaught Pennsylvania still unsolved, Secretary of the Navy Daniels today called a secret conference of high navy officials.

Reports in the department indicated that the conference considered stringent steps in the investigation now under way.

In the secret conferences were Rear Admiral Hine, Rear Admiral Twining, chief of ordnance, and Rear Admiral Osbon, chief of the steam engineering bureau, from which department the plans were stolen.

Detectives today continued their investigation on the theory that the thief or thieves planned to sell the plans to a foreign government. Navy officials continued to minimize the importance of the plans, but some officials admitted privately that certain secrets of the new three-gun turret system could be divulged by the thief.

Saved from Drunkards' Graves

List of Families Made Happy by Renova Shows Startling Increase.

If only the facts could all be published there would be an even greater rush to use Renova, the remarkable conquerer of the drink habit. Every day new testimony comes from every direction to show the wonderful transformation wrought in the lives of drunkards.

Here is Belle Thompson, of Seattle, who says her brother "has not been intoxicated since I have given him the medicine. Renova is certainly making a different man of him."

Then there's the man in Highlands, N. J., of whom Miss Baldwin writes: "This is the first week he has been sober in four years, so you can think what a happy week it was."

Get Renova at Riker-Jaynes, give it to him discreetly if you like; in tea, coffee, soups, etc., and make a new man of him.

If you'd like to try the remedy first, send for a free package to Renova Co., 1 Broadway, New York, and write for a booklet and proofs of what Renova does for victims of intemperance.

By L. R. MURDOCH

Joe Tinker has lapped aside arrogance among the circuit and ordinary courtesy enough to induce him to do likewise here. He knows how it feels to sit in last place. If he can't get out of it himself, he ought to be willing to help out the Boniface who got there first and have even more to brag that they are fairly entitled to a change.

Tinker arrived here today with six of the finest kind of players and he will need every ounce of South End Park you will see what he thinks of this suggestion.

George Stallings has Bill James ready to toe in the Reds in the opening and if James works and pitches up to his best form, the odds favor Boston starting the series right with a victory.

Indian Star with Reds.

There has been a peaceful letter, Joe Johnson, the Indian, who has lost out one game and won his given six beats some all of the games he should have taken this season. But Johnson got right in the news, and it did not take him long to get there, and out again a safety as today.

Stallings feels decisive today upon two points. The crescent pet-troubles in the race which thrills every inhabitant of Boston and environs.

He has already assigned Jay Kirke, the big outfielder, Clarke has been sold to Toledo, where they are always eager to trade for players who are not there. Stallings had promised his men some sort of a shake-up in his Reds, today, so Kirke with the Giants in Buffalo when it was traded to Boston. He referred nothing new until he could return to Baltimore to settle up his affairs at his home.

Secretary Herman Nickerson of the Pilgrims declared today that the club's order forbidding loud talking to enter the park will be enforced throughout the season. Speaking of economy in the sporting house of the Boston AMERICAN upon loss causes of circular directed at loud talkers, some of which lasted long, Secretary Nickerson said emphatically:

"We don't care what loss or has not been the custom in the past. We have made a rule for 1913 and it will be enforced every day this year. We will not permit betting on the baseball games in the park today, tomorrow or any other day this year."

In past years the betting has been open and flagrant. Bookmakers known to the police as professional gamblers have operated openly and without challenge from the police, who always had one or more officers in the big gambling crowd, which at South End Park was always located in the third base bleachers and at Fenway Park close to first base.

"Bookies" Always Came Back.

When the newspapers called attention to the nuisance, it was customary to drive out the bookmakers for a short time. They always returned and resumed business. This season the bookies established a larger business than ever before. The AMERICAN called attention to them a few days ago and the Boston National management refused to sell tickets to them, beginning Tuesday. Signs have been posted in the park, notifying the spectators that anybody detected trying to place a bet will be required to leave the grounds.

BRISCOE LORD, PILGRIMS' NEW FIELDER

BASEBALL CHATTER

The Giants jumped into third place, but are still about 120 points behind the league leaders.

* * *

Hopper, a pitcher for the New Haven team in the Eastern Association, pitched a no-hit, no run game yesterday against the Pittsfield team. It is the second time this season that he has shut out Pittsfield without permitting a hit.

* * *

Frank Chance, boss of the Yankees, passed an umpire a little yesterday and was waved to the bench.

* * *

It is reported that C. Webb Murphy, vexed at the activity shown by Redbach, the veteran Cub twirler, in behalf of the ball players' fraternity, will ask for waivers on him.

* * *

Pirates after losing seven straight jumped upon the Phillies yesterday and inflicted a stinging defeat.

* * *

Ty Cobb's three swats were big factors yesterday in the Tigers' victory over the Red Sox.

* * *

The Naps and Yankees battled to a fifteen-inning 2 to 2 draw yesterday.

* * *

The Phillies lost yesterday, but the Dodgers failed to go into place because they dropped a game to the Reds.

* * *

The oldest record of fifty-three innings was established in 1910 by Jack Coombs of the Athletics.

* * *

Walter Johnson, of the Senators, now holds the big league pitching record, for scoreless pitching. He held the Browns scoreless for three and one third innings yesterday, making a total of fifty-six scoreless innings he has pitched.

* * *

Johnson, by the way, is after another record now. He has won eight straight games and the speed at which he is travelling makes it seem that he will surely fracture the American League record of sixteen consecutive wins, and perhaps the world's record of nineteen straight victories.

* * *

Just to convince the skeptical public that his batting orbes have not dimmed, Honus Wagner, that ancient gentleman who shortstops for the Pirates, cracked out three hits yesterday.

* * *

In the Cubs-Giants burlesque game yesterday a total of twenty-five runs were scored. Twenty-five hits were made and nine errors, five pitchers used, seven bases on balls given, three batsmen were hit, one wild pitch was made, five doubles, two triples and a home run were amassed. Manager McGraw and Shortstop Bridwell were chased from the field, fines of $10 each were assessed against Outfielders Good and Clymer, there were about eight-eight clashes between the umpires and the players.

United States League Blows Up After Four Days

READING, Pa., May 15.—A depleted treasury caused the "blow up" of the United States Baseball League after an existence of four days, which organization was formed and headed by William Abbot Witman of this city.

The poor attendance and the inadequacy of the finances to meet the handicap caused the crash to come. Announcement was made by President Witman by telephone from Lynchburg, Va. The circuit was made up of Reading, Newark, New York, Brooklyn, Washington, Baltimore and Lynchburg.

The inauguration of the season at Newark was attended by trouble between the management of that team and New York, and although the league head made heroic efforts to keep the organization going with six clubs, the handicap was too much to overcome.

McDonough Gets Draw with Egan in 12-Round Bout

MANCHESTER, N. H., May 15.—Joe Egan of South Boston and Young McDonough of Manchester battled twelve rounds to a draw before a large audience here.

The mill was a fast one throughout, with the Manchester lad having a slight advantage in the clinches, while the Hub boxer had the better reach and fought a long range.

In the semi-final between Al Ketchel of New York city and Joe Morgan of Manchester the referee declared the bout a draw.

ENGLISH POLOISTS ARRIVE IN GOTHAM

NEW YORK, May 15.—The English polo team that is to meet the American team in a series of matches for the international trophy at Meadowbrook, Long Island, in June, has arrived here on board the steamer Oceanic. Its members are Captains R. C. Hilson, Leslie St. George Cheape, A. Noel Edwards and Vivian Lockett.

OPEN NEGOTIATIONS FOR BIG CHESS MATCH

NEW YORK, May 15.—Negotiations were opened today for another women's championship chess match between Mrs. Natalie Nixdorff of New York and Mrs. S. R. Burgess of St. Louis, the women's champion chess player of the United States.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

THIS has nothing to do with the game, so don't read it unless you have a couple of minutes to spare:

George Stallings, manager of the Boston Nationals, has just moved into a new apartment and by some extraordinary freak of chance he had a telephone installed the day after he moved, instead of having to wait two or three weeks, as is usually the case.

Two skilful young workmen strung the wires and installed the instrument, and as they worked they talked baseball. Stallings, who was watching them work, was an interested listener. They did not know he was the manager of the Boston Nationals.

"Going to the game today?" asked one of the workmen.

"No," replied the other, "I got another job; are you?"

"Bet your life. I'm ahead of the game looking the home team, and as James is going to pitch today, it's a cinch for another win over the Cardinals."

Stallings did not intend to pitch James, so he asked himself into the conversation.

"I don't believe James will pitch today," he remarked innocently.

"Now, don't let anyone talk you out of that," exclaimed the youngest of the workmen. "I got it straight that James will pitch, and he will win sure."

"What makes you think James will pitch today?" asked Stallings.

"Oh, I got the straight dope on that team, all right. Take my tip, mister, and have a little bet down on the Bostons."

FOR five minutes Stallings asked innocent questions and in return got more inside information about his team than he had been able to gather in two and a half months of close association with his charges. Finally he said:

"Well, if you are really going out to see the game this afternoon, maybe this will save you the price of your ticket." Thereupon he drew a pad from his pocket and wrote a pass for two, signing it with his name, and handed it to the young man.

The eyes of the recipient stuck out like door knobs when he saw the signature.

"Holy smokes," he exclaimed, "Maybe my dope ain't so much after all."

THIS is about the game, so I know it will be read:

Whaling was at bat in the sixth inning.

"There's a fine catcher for you," remarked Inspector Morrissey, who sat in the rear of the grand stand. "Too bad he can't hit."

Bit!

Whaling landed on the ball and drove it on a line to right field.

"I take it back," added the Inspector. "The boy can hit after all."

In the seventh, the Bull Moose, as his teammates call Whaling, lifted a long fly to right and, as the sun got in the right-fielder's eyes, the hit went for two bases. The Bull Moose had a field day with the stick.

THE Boston battery figured in most of the run-getting. Tyler, who was as careless as a Frank McNish at the plate, landed on one of Harmon's curves in the fifth and drove the ball on a line to the back yard fence for two bases. This started all the fun, as Maranville came along with a single and a moment later Joe Connolly, who was in bad for two strikes, scored both runners with a liner to centre. He tallied himself later on an error.

Next time up Tyler followed Whaling's single with another base hit. Both men advanced on an out and scored on O'Leary's error.

THE Bull Moose, who is sure death on foul flies, muffed one early in the game. He got under it close to the grand stand and then let it drop. It didn't cost anything, because the Cards could do nothing with Tyler's pitching and the fine support he received.

THE Reds open up today. President Lynch must be keeping Hank O'Day away from his former charges, for both O'Day and Emslie packed their grips and got out of town last night. We would like to see Klem here again.

EDDIE MURPHY AND BRITTON CLASH AGAIN

CHICAGO, May 15.—Just when we thought things were dead in a boxing way in these parts a match that everybody has been anxious to see for months has been closed by the Kenosha, Wis., club, for Tuesday, May 20. The boxing gents involved Jack Britton, one of the leading candidates, for a championship match with Willie Ritchie, and Eddie Murphy, the Boston bulldog, who has fought two tough scraps with Packey McFarland in this neighborhood. That is about the choicest match the Kenosha club could possibly procure. So a packed house is almost an assured thing, although the promoters have only a week to stir up interest in the combat.

Britton is a Chicago boy and the North Side went broke on him when Packey gained the popular verdict over Jack in New York a few weeks ago. The North Side still thinks mighty well of Jack, however, and will be willing to risk its coin again if the Murphy admirers care to gamble on their favorite. Murphy is well and favorably known here, having worked in town for the Packey fights at South Bend and Kenosha. Eddie made a lot of friends here and they will cluster at the ringside to see him perform against the Chicago crack.

BALDWIN AND GALLANT BOUT WILL BE FAST

By RINGSIDE.

BOSTON fight "fans" should witness one of the best lightweight bouts ever staged in this city, when Marty Baldwin and Gilbert Gallant clash in a twelve-round whirl for the featherweight championship of New England at the Atlas A. A. on next Tuesday evening. It should be a bitter battle from start to finish.

Baldwin and Gallant were "stable mates" but recently, when Marty had a disagreement with Abe McLeod, his manager. Baldwin secured a new manager, while Gallant remained with McLean. It will therefore be somewhat of a "grudge" fight.

"I will make Gallant look like an amateur," says Baldwin.

"Take it from me," responds Gallant, "Marty has seen his best days, and I will surely beat him."

So there you are. Now take your choice.

ELIMINATION BOUTS.

NEW YORK, May 15.—In the welterweight elimination bouts staged here Young Ahern of New York outpointed Al McCoy of Brooklyn. Young Hickey of New York won from Young McCarty of Philadelphia and "Hurlers Tommy" Hopkins won the honors from Eddie Weber of New York.

WALTER JOHNSON'S string of goose eggs is broken. Jerrold Pratt smashed it. After Johnson had pitched fifty-six innings without a run scored against him, Williams of the Browns doubled and Pratt sent him across the plate with a single. This occurred in the fourth inning of the game between the Senators and the Browns at St. Louis. Johnson beat Coombs' record of three years ago and it is likely to be many a year before another big league pitcher equals what "the Tertiate Swede" did.

* * *

WHILE Johnson had beaten the big league record before he started yesterday's game, he pealed two of the three and one-third innings that he shut out the Browns to beat the record of another big league pitcher. In 1910 Grover Cleveland Alexander of the Phillies pitched fifty-four consecutive innings—six straight games—without a run scored against him. He did the job in a no nor league—the New York State organization—while pitching for Syracuse. The following year the Phillies got him.

* * *

ALTHOUGH Johnson's shut-out career has come to a close he still has an unbroken string of victories and is the only big league hurler who has a clear record from the beginning of the season, except a few pre-season La Grand as the most formidable of the crowd.

* * *

APOLOGIZING first to Walter Johnson for mentioning the following in the same column with his record, it is timely, to say a word or two about the other celebrated athlete named Johnson—Jack, "the Big Ace." He's done, too. His athletic record has come to an end. He has run his race. We assume that the higher court, if appealed to, will not disturb the conviction of the world's heavyweight champion. If that assumption is correct, the world will never again see Jack Johnson fight a title bout in the prize ring.

* * *

JACK JOHNSON is thirty-six years old. After he serves his term for violation of the "white slave" act, he will be too old to fight. Even if he were younger, the confinement in prison would ruin him as an athlete, breaking both body and spirit. So we can begin to look elsewhere for a world's champion. The world's search for a "white hope" is ended. The title is ownerless. It belongs to whomever can grab and keep it—white or black.

* * *

WHILE Johnson was at large, any other man's claim to the title of world's champion was board to be clouded unless he earned a decision over the black "champ." As Johnson would not fight, no other man could hope to gain clear and indisputable title to the world's championship, however successful he might be against other pugilists. This alone was enough to lessen interest in the claims and the performances of the heavyweights. It is different now.

* * *

JOHNSON—so far as the public is concerned—is a dead man. The whole army of white and black hearts are free to scramble for the fame and fortune that await the next champion. From now on a new interest will appear in every important meeting of the big boys. None of those new in the limelight is "big" in the sense that he has fought consistingly. It is an open question who is the best of a very mediocre lot.

* * *

SAM LANGFORD seems to be the best of them all, judging from relative performances. Johnson persistently dodged Langford a battle, and, notwithstanding the tremendous difference in size between the two negroes, it was obvious that Johnson did not care to risk his fame in a quarrel with the Boston negro. It was evident that Johnson himself regarded Langford as the most formidable of the crowd.

* * *

BUT the public seems to have had enough of the black pugilists, at least for the present. While Johnson was champion, none who was not a violent race partisan could consider the segregation of the blacks and the whites without always holding a mental reservation for Johnson. Johnson was a FACT. You couldn't argue away the fact that he was the champion. Now that he is gone, however, it is possible to draw the color line effectively and decisively, and in the present state of public opinion the line doubtless will be drawn.

* * *

IF that is the case, Langford—who, by the way, is of a distinctly different type from Johnson—will likely be denied the opportunity which his prowess would otherwise guarantee him. If the promoters and all the important white heavies side-step Langford, it will always be an open question whether he is a better fighter than any white man the public knows. Consequently, the ring is now open to the whites exclusively and it will be possible to award one of them the most interesting, popular and remunerative athletic title that the world can bestow.

* * *

IF LANGFORD'S claims are ignored, of course there will be some doubt whether Ice white man so honored is actually a better fighter than Langford. But the title will be clear, nevertheless, both technically and in public opinion, and as long as the holder never meets Langford, and as long as his ability in comparison with the champion's is no more than a debatable question, how are you going to give Langford credit for being anything more than a corking good fighter.

DETROIT, Mich., May 15.—The Red Sox departed from Detroit, after dividing their series of four games with the Tigers, leaving the unalterable impression that there are only two places that Red Sox opponents can get hit. One is through the infield and the other in the corner formed by the foul line and the wall.

During the series here, the Red Sox outfield has robbed the Tigers of all after hit and they haven't missed a ball that they started after.

The combination that a trio like Speaker, Lewis and Hooper gives a pitcher means a whole lot. He can pitch right sure that liners and flies to the out field are going to stick in mitts rather than bounce away for doubles and triples.

The Red Sox open in St. Louis today and hope to get going at their proper gait.

GUNBOAT SMITH IS INCREASING WORK

SAN FRANCISCO, May 15.—To demonstrate that Gunboat Smith's endurance powers are very great, his manager has lengthened his training round bouts to four, five and six minutes. Gunboat does not seem to mind, but Bob Armstrong, his negro sparring partner, asserts that he is a much man and work by any more than I can substitute a round is strictly against the rules.

Smith is reported to be in excellent condition for his bout on the 20 h with Jess Willard. From Willard's training camp comes the news that the latter was never in better trim and his supporters are predicting a victory for him.

Soon after the Englishmen stepped ashore, Captain Hixon announced that the playing position of the team on the International Team would be Cheape No. 1, Edwards No. 2, Hixon No. 3, and Lockett back.

The Joys of Motor-Boating

Startling Facts Concerning This Universal Sport, Based on Articles in Motor Boating Magazine for May

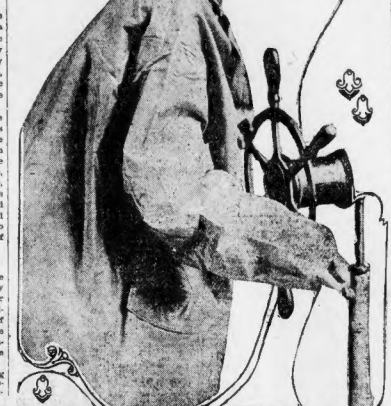
By GARRETT P. SERVISS

THE joy of motion! How it has been heightened by the autocar, the aeroplane and the motor boat! Heightened not merely because the motion has been rendered swifter and more sensuous, but because the driving power has been almost spiritualized. The little motors are like mysterious gnomes and one never tires of seeing them miraculously doing the work of giants. It goes far toward satisfying the universal longing of humanity to be able to accomplish things by simply willing that they be done.

A measure of the delight that these new forms of locomotion afford is shown in the astonishingly rapid spread of the use of the motor boat. I confess my surprise in viewing the chart in the May number of Motor Boating Magazine, which exhibits the distribution of the 256,950 motor boats now in use in the United States.

More than 50,000 of these are in the Middle Western States, a thousand miles or more from the ocean, and there are even several hundreds in the Mountain States of the Far West! Wherever there exists a little lake, or a navigable stream, the pleasures of motor boating can be, and are, enjoyed. The motor boat draws little water, and is very powerful and flexible in its movements, so that it would seem to be an interesting experiment to try it in some of the wild canyons of the West.

Women and girls as well as men are keen for the delights of motor boating



On the Pacific

On the Pacific coast the charm of the motorboat appears to be more universally appreciated even than in the East, for I find, from the same authority, that California and its neighbors have twelve of these fairy craft to every thousand of the population, while on the Atlantic seaboard the number is only four to the thousand of population.

Then look at the photographs of racing motorboats! They seem to be fairly leaping from the waves. The danger is minimized because the water is no terror to good swimmers, or to those provided with proper floats. And the joy of the swift motion is increased by the whipping spray and salt breeze.

Practically a motorboat is comparatively a cheap means of amusement and outdoor exercise. Almost anyone can own one, and anybody can learn to run his own boat. The cost of fuel and of keeping is small. And no healthier form of sport could well be imagined. If you live in the country, your own little lake, or winding river, will afford you many pleasant surprises as you glide through its shaded reaches, or into and out of its hidden bays. If you are more ambitious, and have a larger boat, you may make astonishing voyages on the sea itself, running in to the shores and exploring shallow waters where no ordinary boat would be able to penetrate. You may fish, you may camp, you may anchor, you may take refuge, almost anywhere you please.

The Map, reproduced by permission from Motor Boating Magazine for May, shows at a glance how the sport of motor boating has spread over the country, and the proportion of motor boats to the population in various sections. The hydroplane is the "Ankle Deep," which has shown a speed of more than fifty miles an hour.

And all the while you will be learning the art of navigation and acquiring skill in the management of marine machinery. You will find out how to lay your course by the compass, or the stars, or the buoys and landmarks. You will also learn the art of keeping a log, which in itself is delightful. A ship's log is always fascinating; that of a motor boat is no less so. It is the diary of adventure. By your Winter fire you will take out your log book, with its tarry smell recalling your Summer cruise, and live over again your adventures as you turn its pages.

A Wonderful Cruise

In the magazine to which I have referred I have been perusing the story of a motorboat cruise of 2,500 miles along the Atlantic coast, including the crossing of the Everglades of Florida and Lake Okeechobee, the mere names of which are like a breath of romance. I only wish the writer had told more about that enchanted region, with its cypresses and palms, its tangled waterways and all its tropical strangenesses and magnificence. Such things never fail to stir the imagination.

There is a practical aspect of motor boating along the coast which occurs to me. It is capable of proving of great value in the defense of the country by familiarizing a large number of persons with shore outlines, depth of water, hidden channels, range sights, etc., which might be of critical importance in case of war. Every observant motor boatsman may make himself a valuable auxiliary to naval defense.

In an emergency he might become a volunteer pilot of indispensable importance at a crisis. But Cooper's story of "The Pilot" and "The Red Rover" will see what I mean. The same observation applies to motor boat explorations along the shores of the Great Lakes. And think how delightfully this knowledge can be obtained!

Flowers That Explode

THERE are certain kinds of flowers which "explode" in order to scatter their seeds about, but these are silent explosions brought about every seeding time by Nature. For a flower to actually explode with a detonation that can be heard a long distance is quite another thing, and a rarity.

Such an explosion, however, occurred a short time ago in the Botanical Gardens at Algiers. It was the spathe or the covering of the bunch of blossoms on a great palm tree. This spathe was nearly three feet long, and when the explosion occurred it was hurled to a great distance, while the shattered blossoms rose like a cloud of golden smoke and covered the top of the palm.

The cause of this was the sun's heat, which was unusual, and had actually roasted the flower to the color of rust. The excessive dryness of the air had caused fermentation inside the spathe. A great sirocco, or hot wind from Sahara, had just blown over the palm and agitated the fermenting contents of the spathe.

Such explosions are very rare, but several others are recorded, especially in that part of the world. It is said that an ostrich egg will sometimes explode in the same manner and from the same cause.

The Mistakes of Jennie

BY HAL COFFMAN

—Being a Series of Chapters in the Life of a City Girl—

CHAPTER IV.

WHEN Jennie's mother came in to call her the next morning she sat down on the edge of Jennie's little white bed and took hold of her daughter's hand—for mother knew that something was on her little girl's mind, and all was not quite right.

Jennie, however, assured her mother that everything was fine and dandy and that she was only tired the night before. But mothers have a way of knowing when all is not quite right with their children, and it hurt her the way Jennie acted—for never before had she failed to confide all her little troubles and secrets to her mother.

Jennie ate a hurried breakfast and felt all through it as if she were choking and was impatient to be out of the house. On the way to work in the stupid old street car she couldn't help but think how dull and sordid it seemed after the "taxi" the night before.

Another thing bothered her also, that she had forgotten in the excitement of the night before—what about Tom? Tom, whom she had grown up with, and it seemed she had ALWAYS known. Tom, whom the other girls always referred to as Jennie's "steady." What would HE say when he saw her with THE MAN.

Huh! "she should worry" about Tom—guess she could put him in his place, and besides, what business was it of his? Tom never took her to a swell restaurant like she was in last night or took her home in a "taxi." Pooh! Tom didn't make much money even if he did work hard.

THE MAN had asked her to ring him up, and she decided she would do so that very day at lunch time. That morning at the office she heard two of the other girls talking—girls that always seemed to have good clothes and were always talking about the good times they had.

It never occurred to Jennie before where or how they GOT the good clothes or the good times they had. She knew they were each making seven dollars a week, while Jennie, who was a faster stenographer and paid more attention to her work, got eight dollars a week.

Still she couldn't afford to dress the way they did, and they didn't live at home either. This Jennie wondered about all that morning 'til lunch time, when she hurried out to a public phone and rang up THE MAN. That being Saturday—and wouldn't she go for an auto ride with him the next day. They would start early Sunday morning and go 'way, 'way out in the country and stop at some little inn for a dandy chicken dinner. She was to make some excuse at home and not tell her mother or father where she was going—but, to meet him several blocks from her house and they would just have LOTS of fun.

Indeed she WOULD meet him and she could say she was going out to spend the day with Tom, whom her mother and father knew and trusted. Jennie was so excited she could hardly wait for the next morning, and, just think! an AUTO ride in the country.

Ah, wasn't it a dandy old world after all, and lots more fun than going down to the beach or walking in the old pokey park with Tom.

(To Be Continued.)

Advice to the Lovelorn

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

STICK TO THE GIRL

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

Some time ago I met a girl who was keeping company with my chum, who was called away from her, and while away he told me that I could call on her once in a while.

This I did, and fell a victim to her charms. I won her love and lost my chum's friendship.

This girl has shown that her love for me is strong, and what I want to know is, what am I to do?

HENRY.

Here is a little proposal that I made to her: I would go away from her, and then she could forget me, win back her first lover and be happy with him. Her answer was that she did not want me to go, as she loved no one but me.

YOU love each other. That fact stands out paramount to all claims of the other man on her love or on your friendship.

I am sorry for him, but his need of sympathy would be greater if she married him while loving you.

RESPECT HER WISHES

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I have been going with a girl for six months and have been engaged to her for about a month and a half, and when we go out evenings I have, many times, offered to assist her in putting on her gloves and she seems to take offence at this. I have never acted as though I meant it as a caress, but only as assistance. Who is right, she or I?

A TRUE LOVER.

THE girl is right. She needs no assistance in putting on her gloves. Save all that excess gallantry for the time when she will really need your help, after you are married.

Little Bobbie's Pa

By WILLIAM F. KIRK

PA & Ma & me went to a studio dinner the other nite & it was so funny the way Pa got the worst of it that I have to write about it. It isent the first time that Pa ever got shown up but it was the worst that I ever seen him git the worst of it.

There was a gentleman named Elwood Black Junior that used to go to skool with Pa & he has a lot of money & a fine studio, so he asked Pa to bring the family to the studio dinner. Pa kep telling Ma all the way to Mister Black Junior's place what a swell time we was going to have. That is one of the advantages of having good friends, Pa sed. Anybody can herd with nutts, but I number among my frends sum of the greatest men in the U. S.

Oh, yes, I know, sed Ma. I have met sum of them. You have brought quite a few of them up to the house in the past. You remember the nitting man that confident talk about anything except quarix & he brekened that you brought hoam a other time that confident talk about anything except what a hard run he had on the O & W. & the ball player you asked up here that said the library tabel was a kind of bank leg tabel, & a few of your other grate frends?

Never mind about them, sed Pa, this gentelman, Mister Black Junior, is a perfect gentelman & reiling in welth. Did you ever note anything about a man that hes Junior after his name? said Pa.

He is usually kind of young, sed Ma, but outside of that I never notise much differens in them or any other men. But I supposs we will have a good time, dear.

Pa Made Fun

The studio dinner was fine & everything wud have been lovly if Pa hadent begun to mak fun of the Japanees valet that works for Mister Black. He was a littel bit of a felkw, not much bigger than I am, & he was very quiet, even wen Pa beegan kidding him.

Well, Admiral Togo, sed Pa, how are all the rest of the littel slant-eyes? I & a general in the days of the Rebelyun. Ma & me know jest how Pa is, but Mister Black Junior & his servant dident know him so well, & I guess both of them felt a little mad. One good Anglo-Saxon like me, Pa sed, cud go into a room with twenty like you, he sed to the valet, & cum out. What wud you do in a room with me? he sed.

What He Would Do

I wud brak the honorable gentelman's neck, sed the Jap. Much distress I wud cause him with the anshent jo jitsu of the Samurey.

After the dinner was over Pa sed to the littel Jap here, her, feel of this miley arm. So the littel Jap felt of Pa's arm & Pa gave a awful howl & then he fell on his back.

He has broken my arm, sed Pa.

The honorabel arm is not broken, sed the valet, it is just that your arm partakes of much pain, soon it will disapper, the pain.

I guess if we had a war with the Japs Pa wuddent be much of a heero, but he wudent go anyway.

LATEST FROM TODAY'S STOCK MARKETS

Stocks were weaker when markets opened, there being little buying of the sustaining kind and nothing being construed as indicating a change for the better. Trading continued dull.

Locally coppers ranged lower. There was a slump in warrants in London, but it is doubtful if that had any effect upon shares here. During the first hour Boston Elevated sold down a point. There was no movement in Boston & Maine.

New Haven was higher and great interest was manifested over dividend action by the directorate.

Prices were lower in New York, but fluctuations were narrow in the main. There was a rumor on Wall Street that $2,000,000 more gold will be engaged for shipment to Paris on Saturday.

New York Market Opens Lower.

Prices ranged lower when the New York market opened, the wavering tendency in prominent issues soon developing into weakness, led by Canadian Pacific. That issue dropped 1¾, to 236¾, within a few minutes. Reading, Steel, Union Pacific and Amalgamated also went down, but their early losses were fractional. Business was of professional character and the outside and current events appeared to be without influence upon the market. In fact, trading conditions were unchanged.

A specialty which developed much weakness was American Cotton Oil, losing three points. B. R. T. was an exception in a weak list. It advanced fractionally. Among issues which went off were Amalgamated ½, Steel common ¾, Union Pacific ⅝, Reading ¼, Pennsylvania ⅛, Erie 1st and American Can ⅝. Missouri Pacific and New Haven rallied, gaining fractionally.

The Curb was steady.

Trading in Americans in London was narrow.

Move for "Pure Clothing."

It is understood that the full Finance Committee of the United States Senate, which is now considering the Underwood tariff bill, has tentatively agreed that it shall contain a provision that every manufacturer of woolen fabrics, either here or abroad, must stamp his product with a specific guarantee of the amount of wool contained. This is a step toward placing clothing under restrictions similar to those that guarantee to the people pure drugs and food products.

Fear Cut in Wages.

It is more evident than ever that the Wilson administration is afraid of the political effect of a cut in wages in many branches of manufacturing. Pay reductions are said to be inevitable in some lines, unless manufacturers close up shop, which would mean no wages at all for their employes. Opponents of the administration say it is going to dodge responsibility for lower wages by claiming that manufacturers do not have to reduce them, but are going to do it to discredit the Underwood tariff.

Both Mr. Underwood and Secretary of Commerce Redfield have said that plants where wages are cut will be investigated by the federal government, and the latest statement about the plans of the latter is that he is going to show the degree of leniency he will exercise as production costs and labor conditions.

Some senators call this a threat by the administration. It will apply "the Spanish Inquisition" to the manufacturing industries of the country. "There will not be and never has been a 'manufactured' panic," said Senator Smoot. "What these men want is the opportunity to present their books and give the committee facts before the damage is done instead of holding a club over them after the Wilson-Underwood bill is passed."

London Copper Quotations.

The London copper warrants market opened weak with both spot and futures 18s. 6d. lower.

Thompson, Towle & Co. say: "One of the best informed men on the copper situation, and a man in close touch with conditions on both sides of the water, in speaking of the present price of the metal says: 'The copper situation is impending daily. The demand has increased considerably and as a result prices here have been advanced to 15¾ cents and London at 15.90 cents. I believe that the copper producers will receive as much, if not more, for the metal during the last six months of this year as they did for the last six months of 1912.'"

Financial News in Brief.

The minimum rate of discount of the Bank of England remained unchanged at 4½ per cent. today. The bank made a fair showing in its weekly statement. The proportion of reserve to liabilities is now 50.39 per cent, against 49.90 per cent, last week and compares with an advance from 50.30 to 52⅝ per cent. in the corresponding week last year. Trade is not as brisk in London. Clearings through banks there for the week totalled £306,000,000 against £306,170,000 for the previous week and £334,095,000 last year.

For the eight months ending with March last steam railroads in this country increased their total revenue $1,210,172,890, while total operating expenses were $129,525,511 more. The gain in total net was $81,673,334, and in operating income $77,020,453.

MacAndrews & Forbes Company's annual report shows earnings equal to 26⅝ per cent. on $3,000,000 common stock.

The New York Stock Exchange will be closed Saturday, May 24, instead of on Monday, June 2, or three days at a stretch.

The bill providing that transactions by a broker after insolvency and hypothecation of customers' securities shall constitute felony has been signed by Governor Sulzer and is now law in the State of New York.

It is said that Loose-Wiles sales thus far this year have increased about 15 per cent., compared with the same period last year.

The April exports of agricultural products broke all records, but the remarkable evidence of farming prosperity had no influence upon the stock market.

The New York subtreasury gained $2,080,000 from the banks yesterday and has gained $5,231,000 since Friday.

The F. W. Woolworth Company has declared a regular quarterly dividend of 1¾ per cent. on preferred stock.

JAMES J. HILL TAKES OPTIMISTIC VIEW OF BUSINESS

There is no threatening cloud in the business atmosphere of the United States. I see no menace to our national progress in the present industrial pessimistic view of our future. The only danger to continued industrial prosperity lies in the people themselves.

The tendency of the people is to seize upon false rumors of impending industrial unhealthas—and these rumors, usually having their birth in irresponsible quarters, are always a danger with us. If the people keep continue to progress along prosperity lines.—James J. Hill in Washington interview.

FORBES FINDS STEEL WORKERS PROTECTED

By B. C. FORBES.

Business Editor of the American.

A steel man handed me a cigar and, on planting at the band, I noticed it read "Boost for safety" in the centre and "Illinois Steel Company," lengthwise. I was told that these cigars, as well as articles of more value, were distributed as rewards among workmen for, among other things, preventing accidents, suggesting safety devices and otherwise contributing to the saving of life.

Yesterday, my curiosity aroused by the aforementioned cigar, I went to the United States Steel Corporation's office to learn what this the largest industrial organization in the land was doing to reduce its share of the nation's shameful accident record and to improve the lot of its workers.

Here are some of the things I learned:

Better Men's Condition.

The steel corporation has established seven day a week among all its workmen.

Only blast furnaces are operated on Sunday and they do not need more than two of every hundred employes. The men who work on Sundays are given a day off during the week.

Not more than one man in four works twelve hours a day.

The old plan of working certain men a double shift to changing each week has been eliminated so that no man works twenty-four hours on end.

The average wage has been increased $200 a year since 1902, the average this was $716, today it is $912, adding upward of $4,000,000 to the pay roll.

Safety first, is the corporation's inflexible motto, preached, practiced and encouraged in every way.

Next in orders are: Quality, cost, tonnage.

The sum of $4,000,000 has been spent in six years to increase safety.

Accident Toll Reduced.

The results have included a reduction of 43 per cent. in serious and fatal accidents since 1906. On today's force this means that there now escape 2,500 employes who would have fallen victims under the 1906 conditions.

Blatoned over every gate entered by workmen is a cautionary notice. Foremen are freely distributed, moving picture entertainments designed to inculcate carefulness, as well as to amuse, are given to workers, their wives and children. "Safety" buttons, some of gold, are awarded men who perform meritorious services in the cause of safety.

These buttons, it is found, have a most salutary influence upon the wearers.

Even pay envelopes each week have a safety squib printed on them.

An AMERICAN Want Ad. Brings Happiness in Home

Plainville, Mass., May 6, 1913.

Boston AMERICAN.
Boston, Mass.

Gentlemen:

I wished to thank you for your kindness to me, as I have received word from my sister through the ad, in your paper, and it has made great rejoicing at our home, for she has been gone since January, and her Grandmother, who brought her up, was almost heart broken over it, and, as I knew the Boston AMERICAN was her favorite paper, I thought I would take that way to find her, and I have found her.

Thanking you people for helping us to find our girl, I remain

Yours sincerely,
Mrs. H. S.,

Humiliation, After the Pork Barrel

Rarely in the history of this or of any other country has there been a sharper and more shameful contrast between the life and service of the "pork barrel" politician and of the forecasting and patriotic statesman.

A dozen eloquent tongues, and at least one great series of newspapers, have forecast for the last ten years just exactly the condition of affairs that confronts our country today. Every position which Japan holds, every advantage that it enjoys, every preparation which it has made, and every menace which it carries today to the dignity and safety of our country, has been clearly and definitely and reasonably prophesied and described to the American Congress by patriotic members of that body and by great and farseeing and disinterested newspapers.

Congressmen have absolutely refused to see these dangers, because they did not want to see them. They have laughed to scorn conditions of national peril and shame which are right now face to face to every American citizen.

Not being able to see beyond their noses, they have made fun of their colleagues and of newspapers which from logical premises have prophesied conditions that are now manifest and real. They have patted their fat sides in complacency while Japan, vigorous in individuality, definite in policy and boundless in arrogance and ambition, has found this country, thanks to their blindness and ignorance, in a state of unpreparedness and comparative helplessness, out of which it is likely to extract new glory to itself and humiliation to the Republic.

These men see now, if they can see anything, that they are responsible for the condition of the navy and the condition of our coast defences, which are likely to make us look ridiculous and impotent ... the hands of a little island of tireless Malays in the Pacific Ocean.

Legislators Who Vote for the Trolley Merger Bill Will Find Their Constituents Next Fall Asking "WHY?"

Is it possible that the New Haven Railroad still hopes to obtain the right from the Massachusetts Legislature to grab the street railways in more than half the area of Massachusetts?

The report of the committee on street railways, in favor of a trolley merger bill which proposes to pass over to the New Haven the trolleys of western Massachusetts from our western boundary to Worcester, must be taken to mean that the New Haven monopoly in its dying gasps is still convulsively GRABBING AT EVERYTHING which will help to establish a transportation monopoly in New England. But its struggle is in vain. It is the obsession of a habit. It is RIGOR MORTIS.

It does not seem possible that, after the recent revelations concerning the financial condition and practices of the New Haven Railroad and of the Boston & Maine, that the Legislature will give it MORE property TO MISMANAGE and more temptation to waste its own, in the mad pursuit of an UNATTAINABLE object, which is against the law of nature and the laws of the Nation and of the State.

The Chamber of Commerce wisely says that the New Haven has no money to spare for enterprises which cannot possibly pay in the near future. But there are HIGHER grounds on which to place this proposal than that of the financial ability of the railroad to undertake it. This Commonwealth has always been and is today unalterably opposed to transportation monopoly.

Not until it is a PUBLIC monopoly will the people of this State consent to the scheme which has intoxicated the management of the New Haven Railroad.

The gentlemen in the Legislature who vote for the Trolley Merger Bill must be prepared to defend their votes to their constituency next Fall, FOR THEY WILL BE GIVEN AN OPPORTUNITY TO EXPLAIN. If any member of the Legislature has it now in mind to vote for this bill, hoping that he can escape public condemnation by reading to his constituents that sorrowful "Prayer from the Hills," he had better overhaul his ready-made little excuse and examine it in the light of recent events. It will be well for him to remember that the Legislature voted down an investigation of charges which the AMERICAN made, that this hill town agitation was fomented by New Haven money, some evidence of which was published in the AMERICAN in the form of vouchers which recited the purpose for which the payments were made, and more evidence of which the AMERICAN offered to present if an investigation was made.

When a legislator proposes to overturn the sound and settled policy of his State, upon the demand of an association alleged to represent a few little hill towns, he needs considerable courage. But to attempt to overthrow the sound and settled policy of the State at the behest of a hill towns association which has New Haven money in its pocket would not be courage. It would be sheer, stark rashness.

The "Pork Barrel" Navy

By WINSOR M'CAY

Here are the Nation's defenses that have been provided by the Democratic Congress. The gentlemen who favored this particular kind of a navy refused to vote for two battleships at the last two sessions of Congress because they could not be given all the money they wanted for public buildings. They have already scattered these magnificent edifices abroad through the country at the expense of the navy. What a splendid fighting fleet they would make can be seen in the picture.

Spreading Scandal—Refuse to Hear Any Story Under Promise of Concealing Author's Identity—The Way to Deal With Gossip Mongers

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

IT is reported of Hannah More, the English woman poet (a woman writer is no more "poetess" than a woman artist is an "artistess"), that when gossip about anyone was repeated to her she said, "Well, let us go at once to this person and find out how true this story is," and she dragged the terrified gossiper to the person under discussion and insisted on having the story sifted to the bottom.

Of course, scandal mongers and gossipers soon ceased to tell her the tales they heard; for not one person in one hundred who hears a story about another and repeats it is willing to stand before the accused and say where the story originated.

That is the only right and proper way to do, however, if we wish to be thought fair in our dealings with humanity.

When any one starts to tell you a tale on condition "that you swear yourself to secrecy," let the matter go no further.

Refuse to Swear Secrecy as to the Author of Any Scandal

Say in reply, "I will not make any such promise; I do not want to hear a tale that I cannot hunt to its source; and if you tell me scandal about some one I know I must reserve the right to refer to you as the informant if it becomes necessary for me to do so."

There are occasions when we must warn one person of association with another. A very young girl must be told that the companionship of an older woman is not safe for her reputation, or a young man (or an older man for that matter) needs to know that a certain acquaintance must not be permitted to become an intimate friend if he would avoid besmirching his good name.

In such a case the request not to repeat the gossip should be followed by the statement, "If you find yourself at any time obliged to speak of this matter give me as your informant. I do not want to take part in an unpleasant scene unless necessary, but if it becomes so I will tell what I have to say against this party."

A mother of a young lady in a hotel had positive proof that a guest of the house was unfit to associate with honest women. She was living a life of deceit and infamy. The mother said to her daughter, "Treat this woman whom we have met here politely, but she does not strike me as one who would benefit you by her association. Do not accept any invitations from her.

Daughter Forbidden to Say Anything Derogatory of Acquaintance

"Say nothing derogatory of her to any one, but should she at any time ask you why you had ceased to go out with her, refer her to me."

That was honest and straightforward dealing. The daughter was protected from an unsafe association without hearing mind-soiling facts, while there was no coward shelter behind a vow of secrecy taken by the mother.

A young girl was told that one of her admirers was an unsuitable man to address a good woman. She demanded proof. But while the first and second informants gave the source of the tale, the third was sworn to secrecy to protect her informant.

It so happened that this protected informant was possessed of strong "circumstantial evidence" of what she had told. But she was not brave enough to come to the front and declare it, nor wise enough to keep her own counsel. So she had embroiled half a dozen people in what seemed to be malicious gossip, because she had told facts which she did not stand ready to prove.

Parents Should Not Tell Unpleasant Facts Under Secrecy

But those who listened were equally culpable.

One's own father or mother has no right to extract such a promise when telling unpleasant facts about another human being; either the facts should not be told or the one telling should not be afraid to be quoted.

Refuse to listen to any story you cannot help to disprove or prove.

Song of the Little Americans in Congress

By JAMES J. MONTAGUE

GIVE us public buildings! Pass around the pork!
Every hungry Congressman wants to load his fork!
Fight and wrangle over jobs! That is what we're for;
Ridicule the foolish chap that prophesies a war!
Ships? We wouldn't give a rap for all the ships afloat.
What's the sense in battleships? Sailors cannot vote!
Let the navy rot and rust! What gives US a thrill
Is joining in the "YEAS!" that pass a public building bill.

Most of us get dreadful sick upon the briny deep.
It takes a new stone postoffice to make OUR pulses leap!
We've put 'em up in our home towns from Yuma clear to Maine.
And how they help us each two years to make a strong campaign!
Oh! we are smart, all right, we are; we make no foolish slips—
There isn't any politics in voting battleships!

All this talk of training men and getting stores of coal
Grieves a politician to the very soul.
Votes, that's what we're after, votes!—the sentimental fuss
About the Nation's dignity does not appeal to US!
Let other nations if they like put fleets upon the seas;
We're Congressmen, and we will spend your money as we please!

We've got a few good ships we've heard, and every now and then
We build another just to please the navy gentlemen.
But all this talk of adequate defenses for the Nation
We able statesmen look upon with marked disapprobation.

What's that? The Japs have threatened war? We haven't ships enough?
Well, better not offend them now. Just let 'em make their bluff,
Comply with all of their demands, yes, yes, and give 'em more.
We haven't any battleships, and we're afraid of war!

THE ETERNAL NOW

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX.

Copyright, 1913, by the Star Company.

TIME with his back against the mighty wall,
Which bides from view all future joy and sorrow,
Hears, without answer, the impatient call
Of puny man, to tell him of tomorrow.

Moral, be wise, and to the silence bow,
These useless and unquiet ways forsaking;
Concern thyself with the Eternal Now—
Today holds all things, ready for thy taking.
